CONGRESS ENDS SESSION; SUPPLY BILLS BLOCKED

Postal and Indian Appropriation Measures Fail in Senate and Joint Resolution Extending Present Fund Passes—House Turns Clock Back.

PRESIDENT SIGNS BILLS IN CAPITOL

Lower Branch Spends Part of Morning in Hearing Tributes to Representative Underwood and Speaker Clark.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Sixty-third Congress, after showing an unexpected burst of speed, finished its work and adjourned at noon today. The Senate adjourned sine die at 12:34 p. m., while the House turned back the clock to allow the clearing up of minor business and did not actually adjourn until 12:18.

Two of the principal appropriation bills, the postal bill and the Indian bill, failed at the last moment and joint resolutions were passed extending the current appropriations for the Postoffice Department and the Indian Bureau for the next fiscal year.

After his return to the White House, from the Capitol, where he signed many bills, President Wilson dictated the following statement about Congress and its work:

"A great Congress has closed its sessions. Its work will prove the purpose and quality of its statesmanship more and more the longer it is tested. Business has now a time of calm and thoughtful adjustment before it is disrupted by the European war. The circumstances created by the war put the nation to a special test, a test of its true character and of its self-control.

"The constant thought of every patriotic man should now be for the country, its peace, its order, its just and temperate judgment in the face of perplexing difficulties, its dignity and its strength alike will appear not only in the revival of its business, despite abnormal conditions, but also in its power to think, to purpose and to act with patience, with disinterested fairness and without excitement, in a spirit of friendliness and enlightenment which will firmly establish its influence throughout the world."

House Ended Work at 10 O'Clock. The House, clearing its slate before 10 o'clock, settled down to wait for the Democratic Leader Underwood, making his last speech on the floor—for he goes to the Senate in the Sixty-fourth Congress—declared the House had done its work and it would not be the fault of that body if the Government's finances were not cared for.

The Senate, after conferring with the House extension of the postal and Indian appropriations, went into executive session to work on nominations.

President Wilson went to the Capitol at 10 o'clock and promptly began signing the accumulation of bills and resolutions. All hope of passing the ship bill, the Philippine bill or the conservation measures had been abandoned.

The total appropriations of the session were approximately $1,130,484,224, several millions under the record of previous Congresses.

In the closing hours President Wilson, signed the seaman's bill; the neutrality resolution empowering him to prevent supplies from leaving American ports with supplies for belligerent warships; promoted Col. Goethals to be a Major-General for his services as builder of the Panama Canal and gave promotions to other officers associated with the work.

Tribute to Underwood. In the House the last hour was devoted to tributes to Speaker Clark, Representative Underwood and Republican Leader Mann.

Children Will Play on Streets Free of Traffic

The maternal command: "Don't play in the street," will soon have no terrors for children in some of the more congested districts of St. Louis. Not only will these children have a chance to play in the street, but they will do it with official police sanction and protection and for one hour every day nobody will be permitted to drive an automobile or wagon through the streets in which the children are at play.

Police Commissioner McPheters, Street and Sewer Commissioner Talbert and Miss Charlotte Rumbold of the Playground Commission have agreed on a plan whereby certain streets are to be set aside at certain hours as playgrounds for the children. Policemen will see that no traffic is permitted on these streets during the children's hour.

Trial in Downtown Section First. The plan will first be tried only in the downtown congested districts and wherever possible the streets selected will be in the immediate neighborhood of a public school building, preferably one of the streets on which the school faces.

Traffic conditions in the neighborhood of the schools are now being observed with a view to selecting the streets. The hour between 3:30 and 4:30 p. m. has practically been decided upon as the period in which the streets will be turned over to the children. At each of these places the children will be under the supervision of a municipal playground instructor.

No apparatus will be placed in the streets. The boys will be permitted to skate, spin tops and play marbles, "old man's out" and other games, while the girls will play ring and counting games or skip the rope, secure in the knowledge that there will be no wagons or automobiles to menace them.

Police Commissioner McPheters today said the plan probably would be put in operation next week. In the neighborhood of downtown public schools are many tenement blocks on which there are no business houses. The children who live in these tenements have no yards to play in and the promoters of the street playground plan believe they will appreciate an opportunity to play in the streets.

No Hardship Anticipated. The cutting off of traffic for one hour in the afternoon would cause no serious inconvenience on streets of this character, McPheters believes, and it would result in great benefit to the cooped-up children of the tenements.

The plan of devoting streets to play at certain hours of the day has been tried in New York and has been successful there.

C. F. WENNEKER DROPS BUSINESS TO REGAIN HEALTH

President of Candy Manufacturing Concern Retires From Active Connection With It.

WAS INJURED IN A FALL
Right Leg Fractured Several Months Ago—Lawyer Says He Has Gone Away for Rest.

Charles F. Wenneker, president of the Blanke-Wenneker Candy Co., president of the Million Population Club, former City Collector and at one time aspirant for the mayoralty, about a week ago dropped his business activities and left the city to regain his health, it became known today. Joseph Farmer, vice-president of the firm, is acting as president.

In addition to his duties as president of the candy company, Wenneker gave much time to outside activities. These activities were not only in connection with the Million Population Club's affairs, but in politics, as Wenneker was still an active Republican worker and was considered a possible candidate for Mayor in the election two years hence.

The Wenneker home is at 5333 Berlin avenue, and Mrs. Wenneker was at home early this morning, but was not in later in the day when a Post-Dispatch reporter called to ask about her husband.

At the Blanke-Wenneker Co.'s office, 65-615 Market street, no statement as to Wenneker's whereabouts could be obtained.

Mrs. E. F. H. Wenneker of 6221 Simpson avenue, wife of the company's secretary, and Charles F. Wenneker's sister-in-law, said she understood last week that Wenneker was going to Texas for an outing, but that she supposed his wife was to accompany him.

Otto F. Karbe and Eugene Slevin, attorneys, who have represented Wenneker's business interests, when asked about Wenneker's retirement, said he had several his active connection with the candy firm and had gone away for a rest. They said they knew where Wenneker was and that he was not in financial difficulties.

Wenneker, who is 62 years old, suffered a compound fracture of his right leg by a fall, when he was getting out of an automobile, last November. This injury affected his health, the lawyers said, and was in part the cause of his retirement.

Wenneker was Collector of Internal Revenue in the St. Louis district under President Harrison, and was City Collector of St. Louis under the Ziegenhain administration. He was a director of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

BOMBS TO SHOW SORROWS OF POOR, ANARCHISTS SAY

Radicals Held for Attempt to Blow Up New York Church—Intended Protest to Rich.

BLAME THE DETECTIVE
They Declare He Suggested the Plot and Showed Them How to Carry It Out.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, March 4.—"We wanted to put a bomb in some rich neighborhood, so that the rich would understand the sorrows of the poor."

This is Frank Abarno's justification for the making and the placing of the bomb he carried into St. Patrick's Cathedral Tuesday morning when mass was being celebrated.

The young Italian offered his defense to Judge Swann in the Court of General Sessions when he was arraigned with Carmine (Charles) Carbone on an indictment charging them with the "crime of placing in a building an explosive substance with intent to destroy, throw down and injure such and the parts thereof."

"I plead guilty to the act," Abarno went on in his monotone, "but I did not mean to do any harm. I was there, but it was all the idea of this other man," referring to Amico Polignani, the police spy who brought about the arrest of Abarno and Carbone.

"It wasn't done to injure the rich, but to make them do some reforming, and when I got into the church I did not light the bomb because there were so many people there. I thought that if we lit the bomb it would explode and many people would be killed. We did it simply to make the rich realize the condition of the poor."

"They Realize It Now." He paused while a smile broke upon his somber face. "They realize it now, all right," he concluded.

Abarno stood with an elbow on the railing before the bench, his cheek resting against a grimy face. Carbone, a head taller, looked down at him with an inquiring gaze. He frowned as he understood that Abarno was offering a plea of guilty, and turning to the interpreter, said:

"I am not guilty. The third party told us to put the bomb in the church. He told us the best place to put a bomb was in a church. He was a policeman."

"I did not make this bomb," Carbone said, seizing eagerly upon his first chance to speak. Another man, not here, bought the materials and we three together made it. This third party took this man (with a nod toward Abarno) around to see the place."

"I have come to know, at least I think," interrupted Abarno, "that this third party is a detective. He done all the work, at least 75 per cent of it. We meant it for a protest against the present conditions of society. That was all."

Has Friends Who Will Help. "Who did the other 25 per cent of the work?" asked Judge Swann.

"We just helped," said Abarno. "The main part was done by this third party. He bought the stuff and the bomb was made by the rest of us. He bought everything but the wire, the sugar and the cord."

"What do you want to do about counsel?" asked Judge Swann.

"He says," replied Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, for Abarno's toneless voice carried but a little distance, "that he doesn't know whether his family can give him any help or not, but he says he has lots of friends who will help him."

"I don't want any court lawyer," interrupted Abarno. "He will get us a long sentence. Want a lawyer of my own. You want an adjournment, then, until you can see whether you can get counsel?"

The reading of magazines, books and papers has more or less stupefied my mind," Abarno said, intent still apparently, upon his justification. "These papers suggest to me a man idea that are not in his mind."

ROBERT DECIDES RULES DISPUTE IN WEDNESDAY CLUB

Parliamentary Authority Is Appealed To by Women to Settle Argument.

The Wednesday Club, after a dispute between members about a parliamentary procedure, learned yesterday it would have to be governed by Robert's Rules of Order and not by the Henry M. Robert, the author of the book. The club got this ruling direct from the general himself, in a letter which was read at a club meeting.

Miss Mary Hill, who lives in Bishop Tuttle's residence at 71 Vandeventer place and who presides here (as do most Wednesday Club members) on being a considerable student of parliamentary rules, was the first to invoke Gen. Robert's personal aid.

Miss Hill, it seems, had objected to the appointment of an executive committee of three to act in an emergency when the entire executive board of 19 members could not be summoned. Her objection was overruled by the executive board.

Appeals to Book's Author. She wrote a letter to Gen. Robert, at his home in Oswego, N. Y., and stated her case. Gen. Robert replied, sustaining her point. Miss Hill later, it was said, waved the General's letter triumphantly and announced the wise parliamentary plans of the Wednesday's Club executive board had erred—on one, anyhow.

The executive board members continued to take a different view and informed Miss Hill that she had not stated the parliamentary dispute in full detail to Gen. Robert. By direction of the board Mrs. Philip N. Moore, a member of the club's executive board and former president of the American Federation of Women's Clubs, wrote a letter to Gen. Robert, setting forth the Wednesday Club's record of the disputed parliamentary point. In due time Gen. Robert replied, and in this second letter he sustained the executive board's position.

"But," the General concluded in his letter to Mrs. Moore, "the Wednesday Club must be governed by the manual and not by the author." It seems the General is too busy with military engineering problems, even though he is 77 years old, to become a Supreme Court justice on parliamentary rules he wrote in 1876 and which he revised in 1904. He thinks his rules of order speak for themselves.

Farris said Lee was unfair in his criticism of Goltra and of former Senators who are in the "honorable employ of the railroads."

50 WARSHIPS OF ALLIES OPERATING IN DARDANELLES

Fleet Receives Reinforcements and While British Vessels Bombard Forts 10 Miles Inside Straits, French Battleships Shell Turks From Gulf of Saros.

Only Two of the Turkish Defenses in Field of Action Said to Be Intact—Mine Field Discovered by Aviators.

Ottoman Authorities Say They Expected Outer Works to Fall, but That Real Line of Defense Has Not Been Reached.

By Associated Press. LONDON, March 4.—While British battleships are battering Fort No. 8 and Fort No. 9 in the narrows of the Dardanelles from a point 10 miles within the entrance to the straits, French warships from the Gulf of Saros are bombarding the Turkish position at Bulair. A report has been current in London that certain big Krupp guns recently sent to the Dardanelles, are still unmounted and an aerial reconnaissance made over the straits last evening seems to have confirmed this report.

The battleships of the allies, which now show all the colors of the Triple Entente by the addition of the Russian cruiser Askold, undoubtedly have turned the straits of the Dardanelles into an inferno, which, according to British and French claims, has spilled destruction to the Turkish defenses. On the other hand, reports from Constantinople deride this activity as ineffective. The Turks, however, do admit the destruction of the outer forts, which, they say, they expected. But they declare the inner works impregnable. The Turks rely on mines, but mine sweepers of the allies have been busy within a mile and a half of the forts destroying a Turkish mine field detected by a sharp-eyed aviator.

Canopus Joins Allied Fleet. Among other reinforcements which is said now to make the fleet off the Dardanelles number more than 50 ships, is the British battleship Canopus, last heard of as anchored off the Falkland Islands. In the Falkland Islands the Canopus fired the first shot at the German squadron under the command of Admiral von Spee. The only craft which either French or British authorities report has been compelled to withdraw from the action is the British torpedo boat destroyer Zephyr, built 29 years ago.

A dispatch received by Reuters' Telegram Co. from Athens says: "The bombardment of the inner forts of the Dardanelles was resumed Thursday morning. Ten British warships took part in the operations. According to a British officer, only two of the Turkish forts remain intact. Allied landing parties found the charred remains of soldiers in the damaged forts, showing that the Turks had burned their dead before evacuating these positions."

Official Report of Attacks. The Admiralty has issued the following report regarding the bombardment of the Turkish forts: "The operations in the Dardanelles were resumed at 11 o'clock Monday morning, when the Triumph, Ocean and Albion entered the straits and attacked Fort No. 8 and the batteries at White Cliff. The fire was returned by the forts and also by field guns and howitzers.

"An air reconnaissance made by sea planes in the evening brought the report that several new gun positions had been prepared by the enemy, but that no guns were erected in them. The sea planes also located surface mines.

"During Monday night a force of mine sweepers, covered by destroyers, swept within a mile and a half of Cape Kepez, and their work, which was carried out under fire, is reported to have been excellent. The casualties sustained during the day were slight, amounting to only six wounded.

"The four of the French battleships operated off Bulair and bombarded the batteries and communications.

"The operations at the entrance of the straits, already reported, have resulted in the destruction of 19 guns ranging from six to 11 inches, 11 guns below six inches, four 10-inch guns and two searchlights.

"The magazines of forts 815 and 816, already reported, have been demolished. A further report received states that on Tuesday the Canopus, Swiftsure and three other British ships were in the straits."

Condition Doctors Her Friends Some Anxiety. Doctor's Bulletin Hopeful. BORDEAUX, March 4.—Sarah Bernhardt, whose condition was considered excellent for several days after the amputation of her right leg, Feb. 22, recently has felt a reaction and her condition for the last 48 hours has caused her friends some anxiety.

It was announced by her physicians last night, however, that she was somewhat better.

BRITAIN TO ASK WHAT ASSURANCES U. S. CAN GIVE

London Expected to Inquire What Guarantee There Is That Germany Would Not Resume Submarine Warfare After She Had Obtained Sufficient Food.

ARMED SHIPS WHEN BLOCKADE BEGAN

England to Declare She Never Used Floating Mines—Her View Is That She Is Asked to Forego Strength Given by Navy.

By Associated Press. LONDON, March 4.—The order to put the English declaration against German commerce into effect, it is stated authoritatively, will explain the details as to how the Admiralty will proceed in enforcing the sweeping order. The exact date of the order has not yet been decided on, but it probably will be published in a few days.

Premier Asquith declined today to throw further light on the nature of the measures to be adopted by Great Britain and her allies. Speaking in the House of Commons, the Premier said:

"The intention of the Government will be apparent when the orders in council on the subject are published. Great Britain has not yet prepared her answer to the American note submitted to the British and German Governments, looking to the withdrawal of the submarine blockade and the continuance of food movements to Germany for the civil population. The publication of the text of the American note and Germany's reply in the London newspapers has attracted wide attention."

Outline of British Reply. "The English view, which undoubtedly will be embodied in the note to the American Government, is that the suggestions proposed that Great Britain shall virtually forego the strength of her position due to her superior navy. In other words, Great Britain feels that Germany is trying to have the neutral states perform duties for her which she could possibly carry out had she a superior navy."

Furthermore, the British Government, it is asserted, will ask that assurance be given that Germany would not resume her submarine activities after she had obtained sufficient food under the relaxed regulations to enable her to carry on the war indefinitely.

England's reply to the suggestion that the belligerents cease the use of floating mines will be that she never used them. The English position as to the use of neutral flags and the arming of merchant ships is that no general order has been issued for the use of the flags of neutral states and that merchant ships were armed only after Germany had declared a submarine blockade.

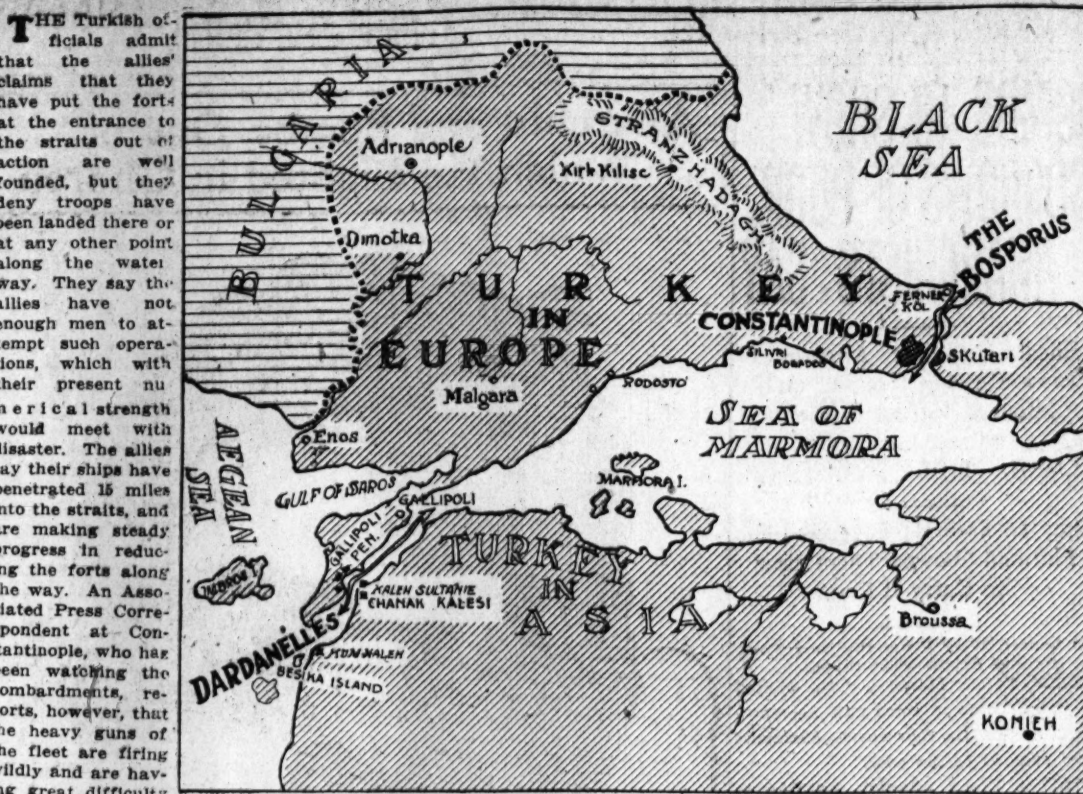

The Times prints an editorial today based on a dispatch from its correspondent at Washington which expresses the opinion that the British reprisal policy would have had a better reception in the United States if it had been announced in the shape of a formal blockade and alliance had been placed upon strengthening the doctrine of the "continuous voyage" to deal with the trade to Germany through neutrals.

The correspondent says that the United States might have borne with interference if their trade if a blockade had been formally declared, though it had not been completely effective, recognizing that Great Britain and the allies are fighting against everything that democracy abominates.

The editorial expresses regret at the general condemnation of the British policy of reprisal against Germany in the American press and the press of other neutral countries, which it considers is founded upon misapprehension. The newspaper concedes that the attitude of the Americans is intended to be entirely impartial, and adds that the Americans have studied common law, which is part of their and our joint inheritance, too long and too well not to know that adjustment of old principles to new conditions is of the essence of legal progress.

"The Times then argues that the principle of reprisal is a sound one."

Map of the Scene of the Operations of the Allied Fleet Against Dardanelles Forts

THE Turkish officials admit that the allies' claims that they have penetrated 15 miles into the straits, and are making steady progress in the direction of the forts along the way. An Associated Press correspondent at Constantinople, who has been watching the bombardments, reports, however, that the heavy guns of the fleet are firing wildly and are having great difficulty in locating the Turkish positions. The Turkish High Command, however, reports that the heavy guns of the fleet are firing wildly and are having great difficulty in locating the Turkish positions.

never be able to pass "The Narrows," at which are the strongest forts. But meanwhile the government is preparing to move the capital to ancient Broussa, 30 miles away, and the Ottoman and German banks have moved their books and gold supply to Konia, 200 miles from Constantinople.

London, March 4.—The allied fleet of nine battleships and two cruisers, the majority of them British, today again bombarded the forts on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, but without success. It seemed to the Associated Press correspondent who was watching the bombardment closely, that the fleet was unable to locate the Turkish positions. The operations during the course of the day were more spirited, but apparently without result.

One British vessel was hit squarely and was obliged to steam out of the action on Saturday. Owing to the heavy weather there was no bombardment on Sunday. The British and French fire today was bad, the shells striking anywhere but the Turkish positions. The bombardment was very heavy, causing clouds of yellow vapor with crashing detonations. The fire of the vessels was met by a strong cross-fire from the forts, which rendered the taking of the positions impossible. The firing ceased about 4:30 this morning.

A British hydroaeroplane made a short reconnoitering flight, which was the only other feature of the operations.

Shells Fall Every Three Minutes in All-Day Attack on Rhema. PARIS, March 4.—This afternoon's statement from the War Office is as follows:

"In Belgium, on the dunes, our artillery demolished trenches of the enemy. To the north of Arras, near Notre Dame de Lorette, the enemy captured an advanced trench recently constructed by us in immediate contact with the German lines."

"The bombardment of Rhema lasted all day, a shell falling every three minutes."

"In Champagne it is confirmed that the German counter attacks against the crest taken by us to the north-east of Meuse were of a very violent character. Two regiments of the guards fought with great ferocity. The defeat of these efforts has been complete."

"There has been a cannonade in the Argonne, with fresh progress on our part in the region of Vauquois."

German Take Nearly Mile of Trenches Northwest of Arras. BERLIN, via London, March 4.—The developments in the eastern and western campaigns yesterday are reported as follows, in a statement issued today at the War Office:

"Western theater of war: On the heights of Lorette, northwest of Arras, our troops early yesterday morning occupied positions of the enemy 1000 meters (nearly one mile) wide, capturing eight officers, 58 French soldiers, seven machine guns and six small cannon. Hostile counter-attacks during the afternoon failed."

"Renewed French attacks in Champagne were easily repulsed."

"French attack in the Argonne, west of St. Hubert, failed. Counter-attacking, we occupied a French trench. In Cheppywood also a French attack failed."

"One of the recent communications from the East Tower declared that a German column, while marching across the height of Tapure (northeast of Souain) was successfully shelled. We must confirm the accuracy of this announcement. The columns consisted of French prisoners who were being led away and suffered a loss of 38 killed or wounded."

German Unable to Move Many of Their Wounded at Praszyn. BERLIN, via Amsterdam, March 4.—The following dispatch from the German chief headquarters was made public last evening:

"After the marvelous capture of the strongly fortified town of Praszyn (North Poland) by one of our corps, the situation became critical for one day by the advance of three Russian army corps which attacked the German wing from the east, southeast and south and forced the victorious German corps by a backward movement to make a front against the superior Russian forces."

"Parts of the corps were sharply pressed and great numbers of wounded in the neighboring villages could not be removed in time, but the Russians were unable to disturb the orderly backward movement and lost touch with the German corps. This proves that they suffered severely during their attacks."

"Meanwhile German reinforcements came and the situation was restored."

"It was quite an insignificant Russian success and cannot be compared with the previous German storming of Praszyn, in which we took 10,000 prisoners and a great quantity of war booty."

French Battleships Effectively Bombard Gallipoli Works. PARIS, March 4.—The French Minister of Marine last night issued the following communication:

"The operations of the Anglo-French fleet against the Dardanelles continued yesterday. A French division under Rear Admiral Guepratte operated in the Gulf of Saros against the forts and the Bulair lines. The French battleship Suffren effectively bombarded the Sultan fort and the battleship Gascon set fire to the barracks of Fort Napoleon. The garrisons evacuated the works. The battleship Bouvet seriously damaged the bridge over Kavak River."

From the report that the French warship Bouvet had damaged the bridge over the River Kavak, it would seem evident that the French fleet had been operating far enough north in the Gulf of Saros to throw shells in the vicinity of the town of Kavak, which lies at the head of the Gallipoli peninsula.

British Cruiser Zephyr Reported Badly Damaged. AMSTERDAM, March 4.—The Berliner Tageblatt's Constantinople correspondent says the British cruiser Zephyr was damaged badly in the Dardanelles bombardment and was taken to Saloniki with 150 men wounded. The Turkish newspapers, according to the Tageblatt, say that the Dardanelles will be the grave of Turkey's enemies.

German Major-General Killed at Head of Brigade in Russia. BERLIN, via Amsterdam, March 4.—Major-General Ludwig von Estorf has been killed in Russia at the head of his brigade.

French Aviator Flies 75 Miles Into Germany, Fires Magazine. PARIS, March 4.—A statement issued by the War Office today says:

"Capt. Happe, one of our aviators, bombarded on Wednesday a German powder magazine at Rottweil, 23 kilometers (14 miles and a quarter) north of Donaueschingen. His success was complete. Ten minutes after he had thrown bombs the powder magazine was afire."

Rottweil is 75 miles beyond the French border in Germany and northeast of Lake Constance.

Irish Trooper Takes Position Unaided, Wins Victoria Cross British Soldier Killed Eight Germans

Guardsman Tells Parents of Promotion to Sergeant on Field of Battle.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The whole empire is ringing with praise of Sergt. Michael O'Leary's exploits at Culchery, France, where, single-handed, he captured a German position, won the Victoria Cross and was promoted from Lance Corporal to Sergeant on the field.

First, read the terse official account of this fighting Irishman's exploit: "Lance Corporal Michael O'Leary, First Battalion, Irish Guards. For conspicuous bravery at Culchery on Feb. 1, 1915. When forming one of the storming party which advanced against the enemy's barricades he rushed to the front and himself killed five Germans who were holding the first barricade, after which he attacked a second barricade, about 60 yards further on, which he captured, after killing three of the enemy and making prisoners of two more."

Lance Corporal O'Leary thus practically captured the enemy's position by himself, and prevented the rest of the attacking party from being fired upon.

O'Leary wrote to his mother and father, who live in County Cork, saying in part:

"Dear Parents: I guess you will be glad to hear that I have been promoted full Sergeant on the field on account of distinguished conduct on Feb. 1, 1915, when we charged the Huns and routed them in disorder."

"On that date I took some of our men up to a very important position of the Germans and took it from them, which was of very great importance to us, capturing their machine gun and killing the gunners, also taking prisoners."

"The Huns lost terribly. We had only a few casualties."

"The fighting has been a lot quieter since, only a few attacks being made, which were repulsed by our rifle fire. You would laugh if you saw us chasing them and moving them down."

"Did he do an ye say? I wonder how many of them I could pike myself? I wish I was by him."

"And his mother exclaimed: 'Glory be! May God preserve my brave boy!'"

O'Leary is not yet 23, fair-haired, slender and of medium height. "A quiet, easy going young fellow," O'Leary is. We never thought he would do anything so fine," said Sergt. Daly, Second Battalion of the Irish Guards, at Warley Barracks today. O'Leary and Daly served together in the North-west Mounted Police in Canada before the war. So both are splendid horsemen.

$14,000 Waters Pierce Fine Upheld. SHREVEPORT, La., March 4.—United States District Attorney G. W. Jack has been officially advised that the Federal Court of Appeals at New Orleans has affirmed Judge also Boardman's judgment in assessing fines totaling $14,000 against the Waters Pierce Oil Co. for accepting rate concessions on shipments from Bixby, Ill., to Southern Pacific points in Louisiana.

Measure Annuls Court Decisions Limiting Amounts to That Named in Bills of Lading. WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Senate early today agreed to the House amendment to the Cummins bill making it possible for shippers to recover the full actual value of shipments lost irrespective of provisions in bills of lading limiting the loss for rate-making purposes.

The House amendments limited the effect of the bill to interstate and foreign shipments to countries contiguous to the United States. The bill, in effect, annuls recent decisions of the Supreme Court.

Other policemen are said to have seen the alleged attempt at robbery and to have shot Hillard in the ensuing pistol fight.

ALLIES WANT NO NEUTRAL ADVICE AS TO BELGIUM

Sir Edward Grey Says Suggestions Are Futile Unless Nations Help Free Country.

LONDON, March 4.—"Until neutral nations are prepared to assist in throwing the Germans out of Belgium, no suggestions from them in the matter of preventing further devastation of that country are wanted," said Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, in the House of Commons today.

The Foreign Secretary's statement was made in response to an inquiry from Frederick W. Jowett, whether the government was "willing to invite suggestions from neutrals with a view to avoiding the further devastation of Belgium by the great Powers which are contending for its mastery."

"The only solution of this question," Sir Edward continued, "is the evacuation of Belgian territory by German troops, the restoration of her independence and reparation for the wrong done her. Unless neutral powers are prepared to assist in securing that solution, I don't see what could be gained by the course suggested."

An Easy Way to Increase Weight

Good Advice for Thin Folks

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on digesting their stomach or stuffing it with "rich foods," rubbing on useless "rich creams," or following some foolish "dietary culture stunt," while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements decided by the digestive tract to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This masterstroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed "the greatest of all health builders." Sargol aims through its regenerative, reconstructive powers to convert stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are stored to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows around your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh.

Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 300 West 2nd St., St. Louis, Mo., is the only U.S. agent. Johnson-Enderby-Pauley Drug Co., 202 S. 3rd St., St. Louis, Mo., is the only U.S. agent. Sargol is sold in 10¢ and 25¢ packages. It will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervousness and general stomach troubles, it does not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

PATROLMAN SEES BURGLAR AT WORK AND ARRESTS HIM

Duplicate Keys, Jimmy and Jewelry Found in Possession of Prisoner.

Patrolman David J. O'Connor, leaving his home, 4721 Goethe avenue, yesterday afternoon, was attracted by the actions of a man on the front porch of Mrs. Emma Hillall's home, 4912 Goethe avenue. The man rang the doorbell twice, and receiving no response, tried several keys on the front door and finally gained entrance. O'Connor waited for him and arrested him when he came out five minutes later.

At the mounted District Police Station the man said he was Charles H. Reef, 28 years old, of Grand Island, Neb. In his pockets were found a burglar's jimmy, three skeleton keys and a number of articles, some of which the police recognized as loot taken in recent daylight burglaries.

known win in circulation as "thin plasters," interested the police more than did the other articles because it was instantly recalled they were part of loot taken in a burglary on the North Side a week ago.

Among other things found in Reef's pockets were a bracelet, two watches, six rings, two pocketknives, two pairs of cuff buttons, a Canadian nickel, cigarette holder, smoking pipe, bill folder and many trinkets.

The police say Reef's method was to ring a doorbell and when someone responded he would ask for a fictitious person. If no one was home he would use his skeleton keys and if they failed to work he would get into the house with the aid of his jimmy. He has been in St. Louis three weeks.

Mrs. Johanna Shubert of 429 Chippenwa street, and Mrs. Ida Hichgrebe of 436 Tholozan avenue, whose homes were robbed Monday, identified some of the property found on Reef.

The Morris company and 23 insurance companies are the plaintiffs, and their claims against the Western Union Telegraph Co. aggregate $240,000. It is alleged that the chief operator, 19 years old, on the morning of the fire, dismissed his two assistants, telling them there would be no work to do. The packing plant had an automatic fire alarm, which sounded in the telegraph room if a fire started in any part of the plant. When the alarm sounded, the youthful operator was eating his lunch in another room, and did not hear it.

Had he been at his key, the petitions allege, he could have sent a message to the engineer, who would have called out the plant's private fire department. The suits originally were filed in Judge

FIGHT ON PRISON CONTRACT SYSTEM OPENED BY LABOR

State Leader Says Democrats Will Be Held to Account if They Don't Abolish It.

Views on Penitentiary Problems by J. A. Houchin

SOME striking statements made by James A. Houchin, Missouri convict labor contractor, in discussing the proposal that the contract system be abolished, follow:

The workshops are pest holes and breeding places for everything but good health.

Take the management from under the spoils system and place a business man at its head.

The State has no right to withhold the convict's earnings from his family.

A plant employing 1500 men can be purchased for $15,000.

If I were operating prison plants for the State, they would earn enough in two years to build a rock road from St. Louis to Kansas City.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 4.—The administration bill to continue the contract system of convict labor, which is threatened with defeat by the insurgent of the House Democrats, received another blow today, when the representatives of organized labor opened an active lobby to abolish the system immediately.

R. T. Wood, president of the State Federation of Labor, said the Democratic party would be held to account by organized labor if the party violated its platform pledges and refused to abolish the contract system.

"The Democratic party is on trial on this proposition," said Wood, "and if they fail to redeem their pledge to abolish this system, which is opposed by the best citizens of all parties, they will not get another chance."

Wood said organized labor was unanimously opposed to the contract system, but had been led to believe that the sudden abolition of the system would be impracticable and would cost more than $1,000,000.

"We did not oppose the administration program at first," said Wood, "because we were told it was the best way to get rid of the contract system, but we have made investigation and we find that the abolition of the contract system would be a very simple matter, and could be accomplished at comparatively small cost."

In fact, the cost would be insignificant when viewed in the light of the enormous profits which are derived from the operation of the prison factories.

James A. Houchin told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that the Missouri convict labor system of convict labor could be abolished today and that the State could take over and operate factories which would give employment to every convict in the penitentiary, at an initial cost of less than $250,000.

Houchin is the largest contractor of convict labor in Missouri, and probably in the world. He started without capital, and has become a millionaire through the profits derived from his prison factories.

The abolition of the contract system is the most acute question now before the State Legislature. Members of the Prison Reform Committee, appointed by the State Senate two years ago, are making a determined fight to have it abolished. After visiting all the leading penitentiaries in the country, they declare the Missouri prison is 25 years behind those of other states in matters of prison reform and management.

Administration Contention.

The administration, including Gov. Major and Warden McClung, is seeking to have passed a bill which would continue the system for six more years.

The administration forces have urged that to abolish the contract system abruptly, would cost the State more than $1,000,000, and prove to be an almost impossible task.

There are about 3000 convicts in the penitentiary.

Houchin said his factories there could supply 1500 men with employment, and that the State could replace all the machinery operated by him for $50,000.

"The argument that it will cost the State $1,000,000 to stop the contract system is foolish," said Houchin, "and is only advanced by men who are not acquainted with the facts or who have personal reasons for wanting the system continued."

"If the Legislature really wants to abolish the system, it can appropriate enough money to buy the machinery and can empower the management to draw from the large balance which is always kept in the Treasury sufficient funds to buy the first supply of raw materials. That money, of course, would be returned almost immediately, and the original outlay would comprise only the cost of the plant."

Money for Good Roads.

Houchin said there were large profits in the contract business at the present rates.

"They talk about good roads," he said, "if I were operating for the State the money now worked by convicts I could make enough money to build the State in two years to build a rock-ribbed highway from St. Louis to Kansas City."

Houchin said there never would be a satisfactory solution of the convict labor problem until the management of the prison was taken from under the political spoils system.

"The only way to solve the problem properly is to take the management of the institution entirely out of politics and place in charge of it a trained business man, on the same principle that a great bank or trust company would select a man to manage its affairs."

Houchin thought the State should pay to the relatives or those dependent upon convicts for support, all of the prisoner's earnings except an amount to cover the cost of feeding and sheltering him.

The greatest crime being committed in Missouri today," he asserted, "is perpetrated by the State when it takes a man from society and then takes his earnings from his poor, innocent and often suffering family."

The last Legislature passed a law providing that 5 per cent of a convict's earnings should be paid to his family or placed to his credit, but the law never has been complied with.

The bill which the administration now seeks to have passed originally contained a provision that 15 per cent of the earnings should be paid to the convict or his family, but that section was stricken from the bill by an amendment, introduced by Tom Dumm of Cole County, the personal representative of the administration in the House.

When asked about sanitary conditions at the penitentiary, as he had observed them, Houchin said: "The workshops in the Missouri Penitentiary are pest-holes. They are the breeding places for everything except good health."

"One of the provisions of all contracts is that the prison management agrees to keep the shops clean and sanitary."

3 MEN HELD FOR RUG THEFTS FROM FURNITURE FIRMS

Two Prisoners Say Proceeds of Their Pilferings Were Used to Help Their Families.

The theft of rugs from furniture stores, and the sale of some of the rugs to rooming house keepers, are charged against John Graham, 34 years old, of 33 South Fifteenth street, and two men whom the police arrested on information given by Graham. He admits the charge, and one of the other men, Norval Burnside, 20, of 923 Market street, says he helped Graham. Frank Owens, 44, of 1207 Chestnut street, was the third man arrested. Graham was arrested on the charge of holding up William Arkenbergh of 107 North Thirteenth street and robbing him of a small amount of money. He says he asked Arkenbergh for a loan, and that when this request was refused, he reached into Arkenbergh's pocket and took some money, without violence or threat of violence. Graham said his mother, who lately died, was ill for 18 months, and that he used the money he got from his thefts to provide comforts for her. Burnside cited the needs of his young wife and his aged father as his reason for committing crimes, which he said Graham suggested. The furniture firms which were robbed were the Gibson company, 2217 Wash street; the Levy & Herman Co., Fourteenth street and Clark avenue, and the Walker company, Eleventh and Walnut streets. Mrs. Amelia Melvin of 100 North Thirteenth street, Mrs. Louise Miller of 1235 Olive street and Mrs. Edna Stephens of 1383 Chestnut street were some of the innocent purchasers of the stolen rugs.

PATROLMEN SEE MAN KNOCKED DOWN, ROBBED; ARREST FOUR

Policemen, Hiding in Shadows, Saw Victim Trained and Attacked on Street.

Patrolmen Kraeger and Schellhase saw four men following a fifth on Fourth street, between Lombard street and Chouteau avenue, at 12:30 o'clock this morning and, hiding in the shadows, awaited developments. Midway in the block the four men knocked the other man down and then ran into a saloon at 1016 South Fourth street.

The patrolmen ran to where the victim lay, ascertained he had been robbed, and followed the four men into the saloon and out to the back yard, where they arrested them. The victim said he was Henry Knight of 200 Clark avenue and that he had been robbed of $15. The prisoners said they were John and Joseph O'Brien, fireman and cooper, living at 61 Hickory street; George Brown, iron worker, of 211 North Ninth street; and Michael Ryan, laborer, of 120 Convent street.

The prisoners had no money in their possession and denied having robbed Knight. They admitted having knocked him down, but said it was an accident.

IMPEACHMENT PROCEEDINGS AGAINST DAYTON DROPPED

Judge's Conduct in Some Instances Reprehensible, Opinion of House Committee.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Impeachment proceedings against Alton G. Dayton, Federal Judge in the Northern District of West Virginia, were dropped by the House Judiciary Committee yesterday by a vote of 11 to 4.

A majority report, drafted by the subcommittee which investigated charges against Judge Dayton, held that while his conduct had been "reprehensible," there was "little possibility of maintaining them to a conclusion of his guilt."

The minority report, drawn by Chairman McGillivuddy and recommending impeachment, was rejected. The findings on specific charges declared the Judge had not conspired to remove Judge Jackson, his predecessor, and had not shown favoritism to corporations. The report stated that charges of prejudice against labor organizations, Dayton's conduct in cases involving them "generally was that of one who had prejudged the cases before him."

WOOD CALLS ARMY MEN'S ACTIVITY IN LEGION UNOFFICIAL

Eastern Department's Commander Denies Connection With Reserve Plan.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Major-General Wood, commanding the Eastern Department of the army, in a letter to Brigadier-General Hugh L. Scott, Chief of Staff of the army, denies that anyone in his department has at any time had any connection with the American Legion movement to raise reservists.

With Gen. Scott's permission, Secretary Garrison made public the following extracts from Gen. Wood's letter:

"We are at these headquarters and have had no official connection with the American Legion, so called, of which I sent you the details in my letter of Feb. 21, inclosing with it the circular relating to it.

"My connection is limited wholly to an inspection two or three weeks ago with two gentlemen who were the founders of the movement.

"It has no connection with the army up to the present time, other than as I have indicated to you. Johnson's activities in connection with it have been purely unofficial."

Gen. Wood's letter was a personal communication to Gen. Scott. Secretary Garrison still is awaiting the report which he called upon Gen. Wood to make concerning the reported connection of army officers with the American Legion movement.

TWO MEN, ARRESTED AS HOB THIEVES, LYNCHED IN ARKANSAS

Prisoners Are Taken From Officers
By Mob and Shot to

CLARENDON, Ark., March 4.—Jeff Mansel and H. M. Candy, two white men, White River river fishers arrested for stealing hogs, were taken from officers and shot to death late Tuesday, Sheriff Milwee said. The affair occurred in a wild and remote section.

According to the report, officers who had arrested Mansel and Candy were taking them in a boat to a justice. While paddling up a bayou a command to stop came from a clump of bushes from which muskets of shotguns and rifles appeared. The officers, obeying commands, landed and departed, leaving the prisoners. Later they heard shots and returned to find their prisoners dead.

The officers saw none of the attacking party. Sheriff Milwee said feeling in the section where the crime occurred is so strong that it is impossible to secure information as to the identities of those in the mob.

MUST LEAVE HER $27,500 HOME

KANSAS CITY Women Gets Eviction
Order After Doors Are Broken.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 4.—After three Deputy Sheriffs had met with resistance for several hours in an effort to serve papers evicting Mrs. Clara E. Bell from her $27,500 home, they broke in the back door, late yesterday afternoon.

They found Mrs. Bell, who is the wife of John S. Bell, now in a sanatorium, in the house with a maid servant, and because she is ill she and the maid were permitted to remain in the house overnight.

The next-door neighbor of Mrs. Bell, W. M. Hansen, president of the Butte Investment Co., obtained the order for her eviction.

BOTH WIVES' NAMES TO BE ON PRESIDENT TYLER'S MONUMENT

Secretary of War Garrison Makes Solomon-Like Decision in Case of Memorial.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Secretary of War Garrison today used some of King Solomon's theories of equity in deciding that the names of both of President Tyler's wives should be chiseled upon the monument which Congress has provided shall be erected over his grave in Richmond. President Tyler's first wife died in the White House, and was buried at her home in Virginia. His second wife died many years later and was buried beside him in Hollywood Cemetery in Richmond.

When the commission, which has charge of the monument began to prepare to erect it, they decided that the wife who lies beside him in Richmond should be named on the granite. The relatives of his first wife appealed to the War Department, and Mr. Garrison decided that the name of Letitia Christian, his first wife, should be chiseled beside that of Julia Gardner, the wife of his old age.

SCHOOL FOR SUFFRAGE AT UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI

Girls Announce Course to Learn How to Attain and Use the Ballot.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 4.—A school to prepare women for suffrage will be instituted by girls at the University of Missouri. This was announced today as the result of a meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of University Women. Courses of study are being arranged which are designed to lead to an understanding of how to attain the ballot and how to use it wisely after it is gained.

CITY DEPARTMENTS WANT $4,000,000 MORE THAN IN '14

Problem Before Board of Estimate on Budget Is How to Keep Tax Rate Down.

Estimates from all city departments filed with the Board of Estimate and Apportionment now comprised of two members, Mayor Kiel and Comptroller Player, total approximately $4,000,000 more than last year's appropriations, according to the Mayor. The Board is now in daily session preparing the first city budget under the new charter.

According to the Mayor, the board's greatest problem is how to keep the tax rate down to the normal of $2.35 on each $100 valuation for all purposes. The issue of $2,500,000 worth of free bridge bonds, dated April 1, will require an additional 5 cents in the tax rate to provide for interest and sinking fund for the bonds. Comptroller Player says ordinary expenses requirements this year call for a further increase of 3 or 4 cents. This would mean a cut of 12 or 14 cents in the regular apportionments to keep the rate down to normal and at the same time provide for the bond payment.

According to the Comptroller, the different departments have asked for a total of $2,100,000 for extraordinary expenses, while civic organizations have urged that the city provide $1,900,000 more for improvements and extras outside normal operation of administrative departments.

The third member of the board will be the President of the New Board of Aldermen, to be elected in April.

ILLINOIS FUGITIVES HELD HERE

Young Men Escaped From Institution at Lincoln.

Two fugitives from the Illinois School and Colony at Lincoln, Ill., were captured last evening by Patrolman William Schlueter, who saw them alight from a Chicago & Eastern Illinois train at Hall and Branch streets. They gave their names as John Baggott, 25 years old, a painter, and Ed Henry Page, 19, a tailor, and said they had run away from the institution. A message from Supt. Thomas Leonard instructed the police to hold the runaways until an officer could arrive to take them back.

Society

He is the son of Mrs. Moses Rumsey of 3 Portland place and the brother of Mrs. Ervin P. Hills.

The news of the marriage was a surprise here as no formal announcement had been made on account of the bride's family being in mourning.

Mr. and Mrs. Rumsey stopped in New York on their way to Florida to spend their honeymoon. Mr. Rumsey is now in St. Louis later to visit Mr. Rumsey's mother.

Mrs. Pierre Cartier of Paris also is a sister of Mr. Rumsey and is now doing Red Cross work in the hospital at Cherbourg, France.

There is a possibility of Mr. Rumsey and his bride coming here to make their home.

Dr. and Mrs. Carr Lane of New Haven, Conn., are expected to arrive the last of the week to visit Dr. Lane's mother, Mrs. Francis A. Lane of 3640 West Pine boulevard. Dr. Lane formerly lived in St. Louis.

Miss Hildegard Nagel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nagel of 44 Westmoreland place, is making a visit in Louisville, Ky., and will be away several weeks.

The Young People's Association of the Ethical Society has announced a series of three Sunday evening musical and literary recitals, the first of which will take place Sunday, March 7, at the Sheldon Memorial, 3648 Washington avenue. The following will take part: Miss Clara Meyer, piano; Miss Agnes Gray, violin; Mr. P. G. Anton, violoncello.

A program of unusual interest is offered, consisting of recitals for piano, violin and cello by Beethoven and Arensky, an improvisation for piano and violin from Strauss' sonata and readings of a group of Browning's poems by Percival Chubb.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Dorris Elizabeth Norvell and James D. Matthews in Savannah, Mo., Feb. 24.

Mrs. Matthews is the daughter of Mrs. M. D. Ryder, 2881 Klemm avenue. The engagement was made known last fall. The couple will make their home in Kansas City.

Mrs. Richard Lippencott of Cincinnati, O., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Karl E. Link of 1218 Clemens avenue.

The Twentieth Century Art Club will meet Monday afternoon at the Cabanne Branch Library. The afternoon will be devoted to the "Chateaux of France." Mrs. Jeffries will have charge of the program, assisted by Mrs. McCormack.

Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Bond of 11 Vandeventer place have joined the St. Louis colony at the Arkansas Hot Springs. Messrs. J. B. Hogan, W. S. Shannon and T. R. Stevenson are new arrivals at the Arlington Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brown, 1400 North Ninth street, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anna Brown, to Mr. P. M. Abramowitz of 440 Evans avenue, at a party at their home last Sunday. The wedding is planned to take place some time next June.

Dr. Simon said today to a reporter that Bauer does not seem to understand his trouble is due to a condition of the bone and not to any break. "This man has been a charge patient of mine for years," said Dr. Simon, "and I have been very considerate of him. The trouble for which he blames me has been developing several years."

REVIEW OF WORK OF CONGRESS THAT ENDED AT NOON

Tariff, Reserve Bank and Anti-Trust Acts Foremost Accomplishments of Session.

AT WORK 637 DAYS

Foreign Affairs Constantly at Fore Because of Mexican and European Situations.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Sixty-third Congress, first under complete domination of the Democratic party since 1866, ended today at noon.

It had been in almost continuous session since President Wilson's inauguration two years ago. Beginning with an extra session called by the President April 7, 1913, the Congress has worked actually 637 days.

Much important legislation was accomplished, but much contemplated, some of it hard pressed by the President and party leaders, was left undone. It is the present intention of the President and his advisers to give Congress a rest. Rather than force an extra session, they would leave the remainder of the administration's constructive program to a new Congress next winter, which, although under Democratic control, will have a greatly reduced majority in the House.

Session's Chief Accomplishments. Foremost in the enactments of the Sixty-third Congress were:

The Underwood-Simmons tariff act, which with the income tax which replaced the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

The Federal reserve act, reorganizing the currency system. Anti-trust laws to supplement the Sherman act, including the Clayton law and Federal Trade Commission act, the former providing for punishment of individuals who violate business regulations and the latter establishing a Government institution to aid in keeping business within the law.

Repeal of the Panama Canal tolls exemption for American coast-wise shipping.

Act directing the building, at a cost of $5,000,000 of a Government railroad to the mineral fields of Alaska.

Act to regulate cotton exchanges and to penalize dealings in purely speculative cotton future sales.

A special internal revenue tax, commonly called the "war tax."

A Government war risk Insurance Bureau to insure American ships against the hazards of war, and an act providing for the transfer of foreign-owned or built ships to American registry.

Measures Failing of Passage. Of those measures which failed of enactment or could not be considered for lack of time, the following are regarded by Democratic leaders as paramount:

Bill for Government purchase or charter of transoceanic ships for the establishment of an American merchant marine, which encountered the most stubborn filibuster in the history of the Senate, created an insistent movement in the Democratic ranks and held up general legislation for weeks of the last session.

The immigration bill, including a literacy test for admission of aliens, which passed both houses was vetoed by President Wilson and failed by a narrow margin to repass the House on a motion to overturn the veto.

Conservation measures urged by the President to provide a new system for leasing of water power sites and a leasing system to open the mineral resources of the country.

Bill to enlarge the measure of Philippine self-government and to extend promise of ultimate independence to Filipino people, measure which passed the House and was approved by a Senate committee.

merce Commission of the issue of railroad securities, originally a part of the administration's anti-trust program.

Rural credits legislation contemplating the establishment of a system of farm mortgage loan banks, persistently urged throughout the Congress.

Many Bills Died With Congress. In addition to the foregoing, scores of general legislative bills, covering a wide range of subjects, died with the end of the Congress, among them, measures for Federal road improvement, general waterway development, reorganization of the civil service, to prohibit importation of convict-made goods, and several measures for reorganization of the army.

The last session of the Congress was notable, too, for the failure of the great issues, national prohibition and woman suffrage, proposed constitutional amendments precipitated two of the most exciting legislative battles in the history of the House of Representatives, both measures failing to receive a necessary two-thirds vote.

Foreign relations of the nation were constantly to the fore almost from the beginning of the Congress. The Mexican situation requiring close attention from the outset as has the European war. Throughout the session the President and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee were in frequent conferences and much was done to restrain unusual demonstrations which might have disturbed international tranquility. Early in the session, general arbitration treaties with several great foreign Powers were renewed for five-year periods and 26 peace commission treaties providing for investigation of international disputes before resort to arms were negotiated and ratified. A treaty to enforce the regulations adopted by the London Safety-at-Sea conference was ratified last December, but with an amendment making reservations which came too late for other Powers to consider, thus preventing enforcement of the convention. A treaty with Nicaragua providing for acquisition of the Nicaraguan canal route and naval stations for $5,000,000 was left unratified by the Senate and the pending treaty with Colombia directing payment of $25,000,000 for the Panama Canal strip was held in by the Foreign Relations Committee.

The closing session of the Congress was almost wholly devoted to appropriation bills, the ship purchase bill fight, and a few general measures. Aside from appropriations about the only important legislative enactments included the creation of the coast guard by consolidation of the life saving and revenue cutter services; reclassification of grades in the diplomatic and consular service; requirement of registration of and imposing special taxes upon all dealers, manufacturers or importers of opium, or its derivatives, and the creation of the Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado.

Considerable time was devoted in Congress to debates on national defense, precipitated by the introduction of a resolution by Representative Gardner providing for investigation of the country's preparedness for war.

With the fall of the gavel today many Senators and Congressmen long national figures passed into private life. Senators who retire are Root of New York, Burton, Ohio; Perkins, California; Thornton, Louisiana; Bristow, Kansas; Stephenson, Wisconsin; Crawford, South Dakota; Camden, Kentucky, and White of Alabama. Representatives Underwood and Broussard leave the House to go to the Senate. Scores of Representatives in the House give way to new members.

Charles Curtis of Kansas comes back to the Senate after a campaign when he retired from Congress. Representatives Murdock of Kansas, the Progressive leader of the House, and Nealey, Kansas, Democrat.

Representative Cannon of Illinois, for many years Speaker of the House; McKinley of Illinois, former chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee and the Republican National Committee; Foss of Illinois, who used to head the Naval Committee; Longworth of Ohio, Sulloway of New Hampshire, Rodenberg, Wilson and Sterling, all of Illinois, are among the more conspicuous representatives who again enter the lists of the House.

Among others prominent in national legislation who retire from Congress now are Representatives Bartholdt of Missouri, Stevens and Manshan, Minnesota; Burke and Martin, South Dakota; Palmer and Temple of Pennsylvania; Bulkeley of Ohio, Bartlett of Georgia, Korbly of Indiana, Floyd of Arkansas, McDuire of Oklahoma, Reed of New Hampshire and Samuel W. Smith of Michigan.

Previously retired from the House to accept Federal appointments during this Congress are Clayton, Alabama; Covington, Maryland; McCoy, New Jersey and Ansberry, O., to become Judges, and Kinkaid and Townsend, New Jersey, and Murray, Massachusetts, to become postmasters.

BOARD OUTLINES ELECTION RULES FOR CANDIDATES

Associate City Counselor Holds Man Must Have Been Taxpayer 2 Calendar Years.

LICENSE RAYER ELIGIBLE

Office Seeker Cannot Qualify Because He Holds Stock in Assessed Corporation.

Uncertainty as to the qualification of many candidates for the Board of Aldermen led members of the Election Board and the city Law Department today to outline the following rules governing the election to a reporter of the Post-Dispatch:

1. A candidate to qualify, if elected April 6, must have paid taxes and been assessed for either general taxes or a merchant's license tax, since April 6, 1913, two years next before his election as required by the new charter.

2. No candidate, even if disqualified as a non-taxpayer, may withdraw his name from the primary election March 12, but if nominated at the primary, may resign as a candidate before the election, April 6. Such vacancies must be filled by the respective City Central Committee.

3. The names of those receiving the highest vote in the primary must be printed on the ballot April 6, unless a court order restrains the election board. Under the new charter, the Board of Aldermen shall be the judge of the qualifications of its members. The State law provides that Circuit Court shall have jurisdiction in contested municipal elections. If a candidate receiving the highest vote was ousted by the court for not having the necessary qualifications it would not follow that the candidate having the next highest vote would be seated by the court. A vacancy might be declared, which could be filled only at another election, special or regular.

4. A member of a copartnership which is assessed for taxes, is thereby individually assessed under the law. An officer or stockholder of a corporation may not claim to be assessed because of an assessment made against the corporation.

Numerous candidates who are in doubt as to their qualification appealed to Associate City Counselor Daues for an interpretation of the new charter, which he issued yesterday.

Must Be Taxpayer Two Years.
Daues contends that an Alderman must have been assessed for general taxes or a merchant's license tax since April 6, 1913, in order to comply with the charter proviso that "no person, shall become an Alderman except he shall have been assessed next before his election" — "two years an assessed taxpayer of the city."

Delegate Henry Klug, who is a candidate in the Republican primary from the Tenth Ward, has been assessed on a "pollman's lot" since June 1, 1913, and was told by Daues that he was not qualified because the assessment did not commence on or before April 6, 1913, although Klug had bought his lot and had it recorded in March, 1913. Klug says he has been advised by private counsel that he may qualify because he was assessed for taxes June 1, 1913, and June 1, 1914, the two annual taxation dates prior to the coming election for Board of Aldermen. Daues ruled that the phrase "two years" means two calendar years of 365 days each.

A candidate from a North End ward in the Republican primary called upon Daues and explained that he had been assessed for personal taxes every year for a decade except for June, 1913, through an oversight in the Assessor's office. Daues told him that he could not qualify and the candidate was in gloom for several days, until he recalled that he paid a merchant's license as a druggist and was assessed every year on an ad valorem basis.

Qualifies Under License.
He again consulted Daues, who told him that the State Supreme Court had decided such assessment was equivalent to assessment for general taxes, and that the druggist was qualified to be an Alderman.

Alexander Galt, 63 Vandeventer place, candidate in the Twentieth Ward, was informed by Daues that he could not qualify because he was not individually assessed for property on which he has paid taxes through a corporation of which he is president. Galt resides with his mother, against whom the personal property in the Galt home is assessed. Daues says he has been questioned by at least forty candidates or their agents, who were not certain of their standing as assessed taxpayers for the proper period.

Chairman Drabell and Secretary Wright of the Election Board, told a reporter yesterday that the board was an administrative body with no jurisdiction to question the qualifications of a candidate for the Board of Aldermen. The primary law governing St. Louis prohibits withdrawals by candidates in the primary. The general election laws permit resignations by those who are nominated, and provide that vacancies on a party ticket caused by death, resignation or otherwise, shall be filled by the City Central Committee in St. Louis.

If an unqualified man were nominated at the primary and elected to the board, he could be ousted by a majority of the board if they so voted, but might be removed by the courts if the Circuit Attorney or Attorney-General were to file quo warranto proceedings against the disqualified member.

Democrat Business Men and Candidates Plan Active Campaign.
Plans for a vigorous campaign to bring about the nomination of the aldermanic candidates endorsed by the Democratic Business Men's Conference were made yesterday at a meeting of the candidates with the Executive Committee of the conference.

Another meeting will be held at noon tomorrow, to which the candidates, members of the Democratic City Committee and the members of the General committee have been invited. The meeting will be at Lippe's Cafe from 12 m. until 3 p. m.

Sample ballots containing the names of the 29 candidates will be circulated in every ward and precinct of the city. These ballots will be so marked as to indicate what candidates have been approved by the business organization.

Some of the Republican candidates for Aldermen, who are not on the slate made up by the Republican City Committee, have endeavored to organize a campaign to break the slate. They have made a vigorous protest against the slate-making policy of the committee. They declare that the committee accepted their filing fees, and is now using the money to aid in the nomination of opposing candidates.

Your Grandmother's Remedy for Purifying the Blood
And Renovating the System in the Springtime
Ask for Sulphur Tablets.

What was grandmother's unexcelled remedy? Haven't you heard of it? Yes, you have! It was sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses. The main trouble with it was its nauseous taste. A modern method puts the cream of tartar and sulphur into a sugar-coated tablet and mixes them with herbs, roots, etc., making a wonderful tonic, blood purifier and system cleanser. Just try Sulphur Tablets (not sulphur tablets), but Sulphur—remember the name—and get the tablets in sealed tubes at 50c per tube. Grown-up people and children who don't feel well, who are constipated or sluggish, or who have pimples, boils, carbuncles, ulcers and the like, can soon rid the system of these impurities by taking this good old-fashioned remedy in modern form. Their action satisfies or money is refunded by the Prescription Products Company, Dayton, Ohio. A free trial sent to any address. Buy of any well-stocked druggist.

LETTERS OF CONDEMNED READ
IN FIGHT ON DEATH PENALTY

"Appeal From Brink of Grave" Before a New York Legislative Committee.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 4.—Letters said to have been written by condemned murderers only a few hours before their execution were read before legislative committees yesterday at the hearing on bills intended to abolish the death penalty.

A composite letter which Thomas Mott Osborne, prison reformer and Warden of Sing Sing Prison, said had been written by Robert Kane, Vincenzo Campanelli and Oscar Vogt of New York City, who were executed on Feb. 25, each for killing a woman, was read by him. It was styled "an appeal from the brink of the grave," and said in part:

"Only a few months ago our President appealed to the people of this country of all nationalities to attend their various places of worship, there to pray and plead to the Almighty that the legal murder, carnage and slaughter in Europe might cease. Is the cause for our destruction any greater than that between nation and nation now engaged in bloody warfare? Therefore, we appeal to you, not only to pray for us, but also to demand the abolishment of legal murder."

Find His "Stolen" Diamond.
Daniel Charles Bordley, stopping at the Jefferson Hotel, telephoned Night Chief Gillaspay at 8 o'clock last night that he had been robbed of a diamond ring valued at $200. Detectives upon learning that Bordley had spent the afternoon in a Turkish bath, arrested the negro attendant and "sweated" him. At 9 p. m. Bordley sent word to Gillaspay that he had found his ring in a dresser in his room where he had placed it early in the afternoon.

WOMAN 100 TODAY,
5 GENERATIONS TO BE AT CELEBRATION

Mrs. Nancy Lyons Has Lived in Same House at 2707 Chippewa Street 45 Years.

Mrs. Nancy Lyons, whose father was an Indian, and whose mother was a French woman, is celebrating her 100th birthday today at her home, 2707 Chippewa street, in which she has lived for 45 years.

Mrs. Lyons has been blind for two years, but otherwise is in fine health. She said this morning that she was looking for members of the Shepley family to attend the birthday celebration tonight.

She was traveling with her family of Ethan Allen Hitchcock, former Secretary of the Interior, when Miss Sarah Hitchcock, now the wife of John F. Shepley of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., was born in Hongkong, China, in 1868. After the birth of Mrs. Shepley, Mrs. Lyons told how she traveled for six years with the Hitchcock family, visiting almost every country in the world.

She was born in Kaskaskia, Ill., and lived there until 1884, when her family was driven out by the great flood of that year. Her father's name was Washington. The family moved to Belleville, and lived there until 1884, when it removed to St. Louis. Mrs. Lyons was married to Charles Lyons soon after her father moved to St. Louis. He died in 1883. She then became a nurse. There will be five generations of her family at the birthday celebration tonight. Her son, Charles Dore, will be there. Also her five grandchildren, 13 great grandchildren and two great great grandchildren. Mrs. Lyons said that she did her own housework until she lost her eyesight.

LOST WHEN FAMILY MOVES

Man, 75, Missing Since Day Relatives
Choose New Home.

Search is being made for Patrick Coffey, 75 years old, who has been missing since Thursday, Feb. 25. On that day the family was moving from 409 West Pine street to 1108 Forest avenue. Coffey left the new home at 10 a. m. to go to the old. He has not been heard from since.

His wife and son, William, with the police, have searched all city institutions. Coffey is a Confederate veteran. He formerly was in the express business at Tenth and Walnut streets.

NEW AUTO LINES TO WEST END TO CHARGE 10 CENTS

Routes Are From Points Beyond
King's Highway to Fourth Street; 75 Jitneys Running.

More than 75 jitney automobiles were in service in St. Louis today and their business was limited only by their capacity. Despite the chill in the air there was so great a demand for this form of transportation that several plans were put under way to enlarge the service on the present routes and to start new lines.

The Motors Service Co. had 25 cars in commission, the St. Louis Rapid Transit Co. had 15 and an independent line on the South Side operated 10 cars.

Three lines from points west of King's highway were put in operation; one from Union avenue and Lindell boulevard, another from Union and Waterman avenues, and a third from Delmar and Harrison streets. The terminals of these lines is Fourth street and Washington avenue, and the fare is 10 cents.

In addition to the three principal lines operating from Delmar and Taylor avenues, Grand avenue and Olive street and Grand and Lafayette avenues, 20 or more jitney cars were being run in various parts of the city. Drivers of some of these cars skidled for trade along the established routes, picking up passengers who had been unable to crowd into the regular jitneys.

A. D. Branham, assistant traffic manager of the St. Louis Rapid Transit Co., operating from Grand avenue and Olive street to Fourth street, said that beginning tomorrow the western terminus of this line would be at Vandeventer avenue and Olive street. Every auto running over this Olive street route has been crowded.

One Passenger a Minute.

One driver reported that he carried an average of one passenger a minute on this line yesterday, making this estimate he counted his actual running time. With 10 passengers in his car he would make the run downtown in 10 minutes. Then he would pick up 10 more passengers and take them to the western terminus at Grand avenue in the same length of time.

M. W. Bond, manager of the South Side Independent line today said cars would be started from Sidney street and Grand avenue, Cherokee street and Grand avenue and Chippewa street and Grand avenue Monday. These will take the shortest route to South Broadway and then run north to Broadway and Chouteau avenue.

Several jitney lines are in operation in St. Louis County. One runs from Maplewood to Webster Groves and another covers a 20-mile run between Forest Park and Gumbo on the Olive street road, passing through Clayton.

Six independent cars were in operation along the route of the Wellston street car line today and there was a demand for more.

PRICE OF FLOUR GOES DOWN
50 CENTS; STILL ABOVE NORMAL

Lower by 1.50 a Barrel Than in January, but 50 Per Cent Higher Than Year Ago.

The price of flour, which has been abnormally high for several months, has dropped 50 cents a barrel in the past week, and is $1.50 a barrel lower than in January, but is still about 50 per cent higher than a year ago. Further reductions will depend on the wheat market and the opening of the Dardanelles to the Russian grain traffic would send the price tumbling.

The best grade of flour, which sold to retailers in January at $8 a barrel, and which last week was $7, is now $5.50. The price of the same grade of flour, a year ago, was $4.75 a barrel. The retail price to the consumer buying flour by the barrel has been reduced to correspond with the lower wholesale price, and there has been a slight reduction to those who buy by the sack. Large grocery stores are selling at $7.50 to $7.75 a barrel the flour which they lately sold at $8.25 a barrel and up.

Bakers say the lower price of flour will not mean an increase in the size of the loaf of bread, as they say very little change was made because of the increase in price of flour.

DUNNE TO PARDON DOUGHERTY

Governor Says Former Head of Peoria Schools Has Been Sufficiently Punished.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 4.—Declaring that Newton C. Dougherty, former head of the Peoria schools, already has been punished sufficiently in serving seven years in the penitentiary, and that "to punish him further would be a violation of the agreement Dougherty made with former State's Attorney Sholes of Peoria County," Gov. Dunne says he will grant a pardon to Dougherty as soon as the latter enters upon his second term in the penitentiary.

The Board of Pardons recommended this action by the Governor and clemency was also recommended by five justices of the Supreme Court, by Judge W. C. Worthington, before whom Dougherty was tried on the original indictments charging him with misappropriating school funds, and by former State's Attorney Robert Scholes who prosecuted him.

leging that Mrs. Roundey, who is per-

Harold Vanderhoef, 21.

Harold has been staying out late at

Mrs. Roundey, laughing at the accusa-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

"The One Metropolitan Newspaper."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Our friend, writing in your columns of March 1, and calling himself a true American, is more amusing, perhaps, than he realizes. In condemning the editorial policy of the Post-Dispatch and in praising its news, the German, instead of showing weakness of any kind, shows merely how broad-minded he is. He recognizes merit even in his enemies. No German in St. Louis is so unjust as to deny that the Post-Dispatch is the only metropolitan newspaper in the city, or so foolish as to look to its editorials for anything but entertainment—edification being entirely out of the question.
Compare this sense of justice with that of our friend, who is so conceited as to imply that the manager offerings of his own ignorance are the offerings of a "true American," and with that of the English, who stigmatize the Germans for invading neutral territory for purposes of self-defense, and applaud their ally, Japan, for invading the neutral territory of China for purposes of rapacity.
L. M. G.

Where is Ellis Baker?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Please tell me where in St. Louis my boy is? His name is Ellis Baker. My heart is breaking to find him. He will be 15 years old the 26 day of next August and was with his father, George E. Baker, who was in the wall paper business on Madison avenue in about the 4700 block, when I last heard of him almost three years ago. Anybody knowing his whereabouts will certainly render a great favor on his mother and my sincere appreciation by letting me know where he is. I need him so.
MRS. FLAKE HUNTER,
1508 Cherry street, Kansas City, Mo.

Mischievous Maxims.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In regard to the brutality and the unfair acts and tactics practiced in war there is no doubt that such pernicious adages as "All is fair in love and war" and "My country, right or wrong," can be held largely responsible. Such false and baneful teaching should be denounced in schools and pulpits and better and truer principles inculcated.
There is no condition, incident or situation in which it can be truly said that all is fair, and "right or wrong, my country," is contrary to all ethical or religious teaching. I have often wondered why teachers and preachers don't attack such vicious teaching.
Another vicious saying, frequently heard, is "Every man has his price." This and "All is fair, etc.," are made the excuses for many a mean, base or criminal act and are the cause of the conscience of many a wrongdoer. The saying "A man has got to live" is also a conscience smother and tends to encourage crime. It would be better to teach that a man has not got to live; he can die like a man—die fighting.
JOSEPH O'GRADY,

Irish Opinion Is Divided.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I was rather surprised last evening to find in your most interesting paper a statement wherein your correspondent, Mr. J. Murphy, contends that Americans of Irish descent were not in sympathy with the Germans in their unequal struggle against half the world.
I am a constant reader of the Irish World and the Gaelic American, two weekly papers with a combined circulation of about a million, and I find the sentiment expressed in the editorials as well as in the "Letters from the people" of both publications altogether and without exception pro-German. Since the beginning of the war, Irish patriots held a number of mass meetings in the principal cities of the United States and have given voice in most emphatic language to condemnation of England as the instigator of this world calamity and the oppressor of Ireland, at the same time espousing the cause of Germany as the nation whose full success in the present war would incidentally cause the freedom of the seas and of Ireland.

For his better information I would suggest to Mr. Murphy to read those papers, above mentioned, as they reflect the sentiment of a large majority of the Irish people living over here.

O. W. HEINTZ.

St. Louis Street Our Service.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
From all complaints that I found in local papers as to street cars and street car service, I would like to have one of those "kickers" point me out one city in the United States with better service than that we have in St. Louis. Mo. I have traveled all over the United States, Japan, China, European cities, like Paris, Berlin, Orenburg, Leningrad, Vienna, but have never seen better service as to time, schedule or sanitary conditions.
L. A. NOKOVICH.

GREATEST OF OUR LAWGIVERS.

The industry of the Congress ending today, while the least of the notable features in its record, is not without interest.

It began sittings two years ago, on April 7, 34 days after Mr. Wilson's inauguration, and has been in continuous session ever since except for the 44 days from Oct. 24 to Dec. 7 last. No other Congress ever devoted so much time to duty.

The popular impression that it has done a work more remarkable than that of any other Congress in history is largely based on performance during the first year of its life.

Had it been dispersed on Jan. 1, 1914, it would still have had to its credit the act taking the graft out of the tariff, the levying of the income tax, the act revolutionizing the banking system of the country and lending new strength to national finance and credit, the routing of the corrupt lobby, the enervating of the law for labor arbitrations, under which threatened strike disasters of unprecedented proportions have been prevented. So many purposes of far-reaching effect have never been accomplished at Washington in an equal space of time.

But during 1914 and during the 63 days of 1915 the work of restoring the Government to the people and inaugurating the principles of the new freedom was steadily carried forward. Congress passed the Clayton act, defining principles and policies to be utilized in relieving the public from evil restraints on trade. It passed the bill creating a Trade Commission for the more effectual suppression of monopoly.

The European war created new problems of urgency with which this extraordinary body of lawgivers also dealt wisely and effectively. The Congress put the nation into the marine insurance business, to prevent the exaction of prohibitive rates for war risks. It opened the door to American registry for foreign vessels, which has resulted in placing 133 ships under our flag and adding nearly 50 per cent to our tonnage engaged in foreign trade. It labored purposefully to devote the resources of the Government to a complete revival of American shipping, but was unsuccessful because of the treachery of seven administration Senators. The plan of Republican leaders to destroy the prestige of the administration during the short session, a plan in which the defeat of the ship-purchase bill had an important part, proved, however, impossible of execution.

It has been a Congress of good judgment and self-restraint. It was unmoved by clamor for an embargo on commodities destined for the war zone. It refused its assent to the fanciful scheme for Government cotton brokerage. It made reasonable new provision for national defense but was not stampeded by alarmists overwrought by the conflict abroad. It declined to invade further state prerogatives through national action on suffrage and prohibition.

And while a few unrepresentative malcontents have been censorious and have sought partisan advantage, it has been a most patriotic Congress. In the Mexican difficulties inherited from its predecessor and in the European crisis, the administration has had from all parties a loyal support that will be memorable. The Sixty-third Congress, in its manifest and earnest desire for international amity, has been in bright contrast with foreign national assemblies. This is the Congress that ratified the 21 breathing-spell treaties and insisted on fulfilling treaty obligations with respect to tolls in the Panama Canal.

JITNEY PETROLEUM REFINERIES.

Everything favors the jitney. Chemical Engineer W. F. Rittman of the Bureau of Mines gives to the world, just at this time, the jitney brand of gasoline, of which, by his process, 200 per cent more can be obtained from a gallon of petroleum than is now distilled. This, of course, will make a material reduction in the cost of jitney operation.

Now, if engine troubles could be reduced and a jitney formula in rubber-making would cut the cost in half, not the slightest doubt would be left that fate is just bound to make the new transit service succeed.

HANG SOME WITCHES.

The crackling "dry" in our licentious Legislature propose a penitentiary sentence of two years for violation of local option laws on the second conviction. Why not imprisonment for life for the first offense?

If a man is to be treated as a habitual criminal for twice overstepping puritanical restrictions upon his personal liberty, he must be about as felonious the first time as he is the second. Furthermore, to imprison for life everybody who opposes them at the outset would be a convenience and comfort to the sumptuary regulators of other people's lives.

On second thoughts, why not go the limit and hang some witches in Missouri? It is not a far cry from Jefferson City, Mo., to old Salem, Mass., in its historic glory.

ST. LOUIS NEEDS HER.

We object to the proposal to make Miss Charlotte Rumbold Park Commissioner. Not because we doubt her ability to fill the post acceptably, but because her service to St. Louis is so much more valuable in the position she now occupies, that of playground director, than it could be in the merely administrative office of Park Commissioner.

It is easier to find a satisfactory Park Commissioner than a competent playground director. Miss Rumbold's ability for the important and delicate constructive work of playground director has been demonstrated. It is pre-eminently a woman's task, and a trained expert's. Miss Rumbold's success here in St. Louis has given her a national reputation in her profession and has induced other cities to bid for her service much more than St. Louis has paid her. She has, by request of her official superiors, deferred acting on these outside offers, to give the St. Louis city government, when reorganized in April under the new city charter, a chance to deal with her and her work more liberally than is now possible.

The city should make sure of keeping her here, and in the work with and for the children, by doubling her abnormally inadequate salary of $150 per month and by enlarging the funds at her disposal for playground development. If this proposition were submitted to a vote of the thousands of children in the city's congested districts, to whose health and happiness Miss Rumbold has ministered with so much of energy, wisdom and fine sympathy, it would carry unanimously.

A BRITISH BOOMERANG.

Sterling E. Edmunds, Professor of International Law at St. Louis University, assures us that Great Britain's embargo on neutral trade with Germany is not binding, because it is illegal.

True, it is not binding in a legal sense, but with Great Britain's means of enforcing the embargo there is good reason to believe she can make it binding in fact by stopping neutral ships. We are in the position of the man in jail whose lawyer tried to console him with the assurance that his imprisonment was illegal, but who could not devise a scheme to get him out.

The illegality of the embargo, however, should count with the British Government. With the vast interests of Great Britain on the ocean she can least afford to set an example of lawlessness. Her own attitude toward civilization and international law is fixing precedents for the future. Wrongs that she does now may have disastrous effects in wars when she is neutral. Her own vast shipping and trade interests are powerful arguments against lawless conduct on her part.

THREE IMPORTANT BILLS.

Among the bills that should be passed before the State Legislature adjourns are the two sanitary measures, Senate bills 302 and 575, and House bill 868, providing for county tuberculosis hospitals and visiting nurses. Both bills provide for optional application.

These are life-saving, health-protecting measures, which take precedence of ordinary legislation. They belong to the "safety first" as well as the humane class.

PROTECTION TRAITORS.

During that period of the free-wool Under-Silsons tariff the growers of wool in the United States have received higher prices than when there was a duty of 11 or 12 cents per pound, and the manufacturers have been put on a basis of equality with their European competitors as far as raw material is concerned.—Annual report of President Wood of the American Woolen Co.

Here is treason within the very "citadel of protection." The facts, of course, are that the wool growers have been ruined by the Democratic free wool tariff as they said they would be, and that the wool manufacturers are selling their mills for old junk under an avalanche of pauper imports, as it was said they would be doing.

This defection of a whole army corps in the stand-pat camp calls for the most rigorous measures of suppression. A treason which breaks out at the very moment when the camp is rallying to recover the lost trenches of 1912 should bring the firing squad into immediate action.

RUBLEE.

George Rublee of New Hampshire is the one man among five whose appointment to the Trade Commission the Senate has failed to confirm. He is a gentleman, a scholar, a liberal and a specialist in precisely the work which the commission was created to do.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire opposes him because Rublee did not favor Gallinger's reelection.

Senator Reed of Missouri opposes him on the alleged ground that Rublee "lobbied" for the bill creating the commission.

Other Senators object to him because he is a "radical."

Rublee's final rejection by the Senate would prove that chamber is willing, on occasion, to appear to subordinate efficiency in the public service to the satisfaction of petty personal dislike, if by so appearing it can cloak a secret service to the reactionary interests.

EARLY BIRD CHAMP.

The remainder of 1915 will be a time of feverish activity for candidates and political leaders, preparing for the struggle of 1916. Few of the office-holding class have Champ Clark's clench. He was nominated for Speaker of the Sixty-fourth Congress on Feb. 4, 10 whole months before the regular date for organizing the House.

Probably if the caucus had been held at the usual time, the eve of the assembling next December, the result would have been exactly the same—but you never can tell.

"CONSIDER THE LILIES."

Everybody seems to think that a chance to work is the one thing needful—except a serene philosopher who thinks that rest is equally important with industry. He writes to the Post-Dispatch: "If work is scarce we should be thankful to know that the work has been done, and we should take it easy. . . . I have been resting the biggest part of six years."

It has been a long time since anybody expressed such a bland outlook upon this teeming world of struggle and unrest, or reminded us so vividly of the vagabond who chanced into the camp meeting and exclaimed, "Fine for the lilies!" when the leader read the verse about those flowers of the field which toiled not, neither did they spin. Indeed, we who toil must at times feel a sneaking envy and admiration for the lily whose function in the field is purely decorative.

"Hard times" are not without their own compensation, if all men were as truthful as our correspondent. "Enforced" idleness is a curse, but what about the curse of Adam? If that had not been put upon us do you suppose anybody would pine for needless toil? If the curse were removed would anybody keep on toiling except those to whom toiling has become a nervous disease? Art for art's sake, science, and a few of the prettier professions might continue to hold their devotees, but we, for one, would decline with thanks if we were invited as a pastime to dig coal, carry a hod, drive a harrow or stoke a furnace. Only the stupidest men alive pursue their work for sheer diversion. When an intelligent horsehoof takes a day off for amusement, he does not continue shoeing horses, but shuts up shop and goes to a picnic.

In a world of so much cant and hypocrisy and complaint, it is as refreshing as unique to come across a lily who admits that he likes to loaf.

THE DREAMERS.

THE dreamer dreams, and lo it seems
The glad reality is there;
Yet wakes to see the vision flee
Like vapor in the summer air.

But Thought remains to forge the chains,
And make the wildest dream come true;
The Dream, the Thought, and what was not
Is visible to me and you.

And so I say, dream on today,
Oh, dreamers, all the world around;
And though you shirk your share of work
Results will all the world around.

UTE AND PIUTE.

IT has not taken the Utes and Piutes long to establish a very fair oneness with civilized Europe. They have burrowed down for a long campaign, and the peace officers sent out to round them up are exactly where everybody is on the River Aine. They are not turning a wheel.

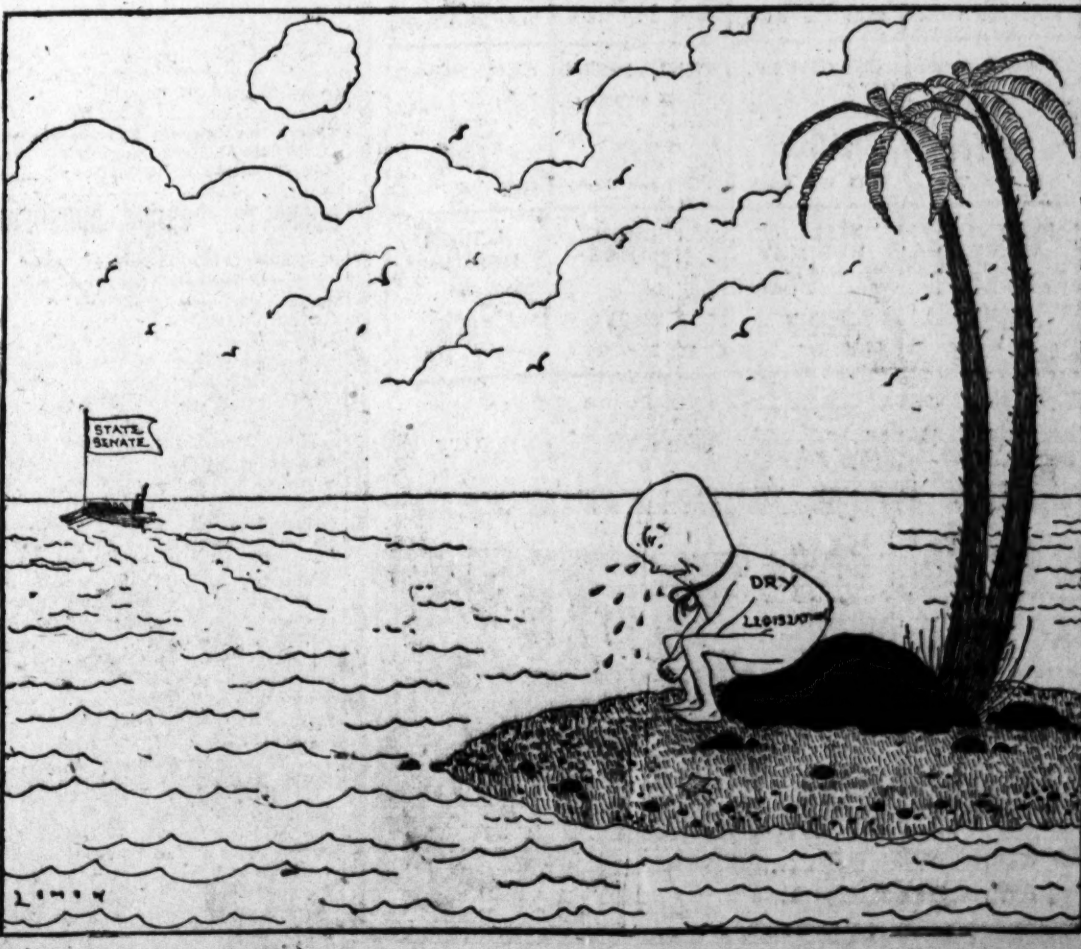

Meanwhile, the Utes and Piutes plan for their Spring campaign, exactly as the Allies are doing, and watch the yellow torrent of the San Juan river for submarines. They are doing tolerably well, thank you, and do not believe they will be taken. It looks rough, and there is some suggestion of savagery in it; but as long as everybody is doing it, even the best people—well, even a Ute or a Piute is a human being.

BELIEVE ME, ETC.

There lives more faith in honest doubt,
Believe me, than in half the creeds.
You will recognize this at a glance, but it is not nearly so obvious as the other. Bartlett won't help much, either, in the collection of these things.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

There are thousands of questions the answers to which we do not know or for which we have not the time to search. Absolutely necessary rules forbid many answers. We have never undertaken to answer all queries.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

K. B. S.—No lady person can get rid of roaches. Biddance means everyday work at all crevices until the bugs disappear. It is said that strong lime is excellent. Or soft borax—plenty of it—mixed with one-fifth as much red pepper, into all cracks, etc. Scald sink and wash pipes with red pepper tea.

JIM.—Sailors' method of cleaning carpets: Have ready two pails of warm water—one clear, the other with a cup of ammonia and shavings of soap to make a good suds; a board one foot and a half long and five or six inches wide; also plenty of clean, dry cloths and a scrubbing brush. Brush over quickly with brush, rinse lightly with the clean water, then scrape hard with the brush, drawing it toward you, being careful to rub with the nap of the carpet. Dry with the clean cloths, taking up one end at a time. Leave windows open, so it will dry quickly.

H. B.—From appearance of your case the husband alone is responsible for the account charged to him by his order, and not the wife.

MR. WORRIED.—If there is a deed of adoption and the child can be identified, name is of no consequence. Marriage is binding under any facts.

POOR MAN.—You can't make a furniture company "take back" furniture bought if it there was no misrepresentation. Husband may be legally liable for account of his wife carried in her name, depending upon what that account is for, etc.

NAVY.—Larger than the Oklahoma (5,000 tons) and Nevada (same tonnage) are the Pennsylvania, 5,000 tons; Arizona, California, Idaho, each 5,200. The New York and Texas are the largest battleships in commission. The two new battleships authorized by Congress, No. 6 and No. 7, will have 12-inch guns, probably 5,000 tons.

MINNIE.—(Supplemental): Navy Department's general order has been construed to forbid not only the surrender of deserters and stragglers at recruiting stations, but also the acceptance of their delivery in future, deserters or stragglers who surrendered before the war, but who had not been accepted at a navy recruiting station, that they should report on board of a naval vessel or at any naval station other than a recruiting station, and should have impressed upon them that if they voluntarily surrender their punishment will probably be less severe than if they are apprehended and sent to a recruiting station.

Commanding officers of navy recruiting stations will hereafter decline to accept delivery of deserters and stragglers, and the person having custody of such deserter or straggler should be advised to communicate with the Bureau of Navigation by telegram for instructions. The delivery of deserters or stragglers at navy recruiting stations will not hereafter be directed.

E. L. B.—Beatrice Cenci (Chen-chi) called the beautiful party was the daughter of Francesco Cenci, a noble and wealthy Roman (1617-60), who, according to the common story, after his second marriage, behaved towards the children of his first marriage in the most shocking manner, procured the assassination of two of his sons, on their return from Rome, and destroyed the youngest daughter, Beatrice. She failed in an appeal for protection to the Pope, and was executed. The remains of her father. She was beheaded and the Cenci estates confiscated. This is the story of the subject of an excellent painting by Guido, and is the basis of one of Shelley's most powerful plays. Researches have carried the story of most of its romantic elements, and have shown Beatrice to be a very common place criminal, whatever the degree of her father may have been. Her mother and her father were both guilty with her, were also executed. The portrait by Guido is now believed not to represent her at all.

The Danger Zone

By Mary Worden Bliss.

BEAR BLUFF suggested the aboriginal, although its redwood forest resounded daily to the stroke of the white man's ax. All around the spot were Indian encampments, but their denizens were tamed down, and there had been no particular trouble with the Redskins for some years, until—less and menacing mood was rife. There were wild war dances, and ancient rites were renewed. Bill Budd, boss of the logging camp, talked seriously.

"The critters mean mischief," he observed to his fellow foreman. "We'd better get the market trees out of the way and move on."

"It's that gal, Leoti, I opine," suggested his comrade.

"Sure it is," nodded Bill. "And Rob Marsh. I don't blame her, nor him, but that young chief, Wineka, is on the warpath, and whisper—he knows that Marsh is back in these diggings."

"But Rob is in safe hiding," remarked the other.

"It's getting out of hiding and back to the city that's on the program just now," explained Bill. "We must get him away within the next 24 hours, or there's going to be some lively trouble."

Wineka Sees Leoti.

THERE was not one of the odd 100 choppers who did not know the full history of Leoti Rogers and of Rob Marsh. A school had been started in the encampment, and the father of Leoti and an aunt had been given charge of it. Both had died. Leoti was left without a relative in the world. A half-breed teacher, and his wife, then took charge. It was possible for them to give Leoti a position as assistant teacher. The Government supplied quarters for them in the school building, and Leoti was content to stay.

It was a wild, crude, even perilous environment, but Leoti was glad to be able to earn a living until she could think out a coherent future. The even tenor of her life was at length interrupted, however Wineka, the son of the chief, returned from a long Alaskan chase. Leoti had shuddered the first time the dark flashing eyes of the impetuous young savage rested upon her face. Every day after that he managed to cross her path. He was respectful, but never friendly. It became known among the tribe that Wineka had resolved to take Leoti as a bride.

Then came the logging gang, and Rob Marsh among them. The young lumber cruiser met Leoti one day at a spring. It was a case of love at first sight. Something of this Wineka had learned. He began an active courting, or rather attempted it, to be repulsed by Leoti.

"I will kill the pale face lover," he told her fiercely one day. Leoti imparted the dread information to her lover. One evening both were missing, and the baffled Wineka nursed rage and revenge, galled beyond measure, to know that his coveted bride was in safe hands in the distant city.

Bear Bluff Surrounded.

BETWEEN the lovers a perfect understanding had come about. They would have been married at once, only Rob owned a mining claim a short distance away from the lumber camp. It was necessary, in order that he might file a claim upon this, that he make a survey of it and stake it out. Then he could sell it for a sum sufficient to warrant his taking a wife, and he and Leoti would settle down in the city.

Rob had attended to the claim, and on his way back to the city, had stopped at the lumber camp for a food supply. He hoped to evade notice from the savages. Someone had seen him. Wineka had been apprised of the fact. Bill Budd had discovered his danger. He had hidden him away in a cave. The question now was as to getting Rob back to the city. One of his men came to Budd about noon.

"Bill, I've been carrying out your orders and nosed around the Indian camp this morning. It's a blockade."

"You mean?" inquired Bill anxiously.

"Bear Bluff is completely surrounded. I suppose there isn't a hundred-foot space that hasn't a friend of Wineka's patrol or in hiding. The orders are to shoot Rob Marsh on sight."

"All right," observed Bill abstractedly. "You and some of the others begin shooting a few logs into the river in about an hour."

"Why?" exclaimed the other, "we're not ready to make a run yet."

Rob Escapes in a Log.

"D O as I say," ordered Bill, and himself proceeded to a part of the camp near the stream where the bluff formation was a shelter against observation from the Indian camp.

Half a hundred logs were sent adrift by the men within the next two hours. The current of the stream was rapid, and the logs floated swiftly down the river and past the Indian encampment. There was an intermission of about 40 minutes, and then the 200 and two helpers came to the edge of the river and set afloat another log.

The old foreman watched it shoot down the stream like the others. He gave utterance to a fervent sigh of relief as it passed the encampment and rounded a curve in the stream, taking it out of sight.

"Good!" he uttered to himself with profound satisfaction. "Holler—Rob Marsh is in it, and Leoti will soon greet her future husband."

But, wise and confident as was old Bill, he had not sufficiently counted on Indian vigilance and cunning. Spies had witnessed his act of preparing the log, setting a movable plug over the part of where Rob Marsh was hidden. Two miles below the Indian camp a canoe shot out into the stream navigated by Wineka. He proceeded to sink the hook of a short pole into the bark of the log and pull it ashore.

"Pale faces come out," he ordered, and kicked the plug loose. "To and fro, Wineka," he called, "he added sarcastically as Rob stepped forth, and the flung at his feet a counterpart of a long hunting knife he held in his hand.

An Unlooked for Rescue.

BOB recognized it as an unequal duel, for his opponent was famous with the weapon he had selected. However, the issue was forced, and there was no escape. Rob nerved himself mightily for the crisis. A thought of Leoti made him valiant and hopeful. The young chief made a spring. Rob warded him off, but he saw death in some dextrous maneuver held in store by his adversary. Then he stared. From the brush an agile form bounded on tiptoe. He recognized an Indian girl, the discarded fiancée of Wineka.

She held out a heavy blanket. Just as Wineka was preparing for another onslaught on his opponent, she flung the blanket over his head. As he struggled helplessly, she whipped a stout lasso across arms and body, dashed him to the ground, and, turning to Rob, pointed down stream silently. Rob Marsh did not hesitate or linger. Within an hour he was safe from pursuit, within six at a second outpost, and the next morning he reached the end of his journey—and Leoti.

Give Him Your Best

As long as you work for a man, give him your best. If the conditions surrounding your position are unpleasant, keep on the watch for another job. If you have a definite idea of the character of the work you like best, it would be a good idea to advertise for it. But remember, we should first serve an apprenticeship before we may expect to take the reins in our own hands. No man can serve himself well, or his employer, so long as he is dissatisfied.

Don't work for a man to whom you cannot give your best; nor should you work for a man you can't respect. If your wages are not enough to allow you to live decently, search around for some other line of endeavor. Always be ready for promotion—this means you should learn your business root and branch. Read good books; as you read, study—thoughts are real live things.

Fix good, solid business ideas in your mind and something good will come to you. Let this be your slogan, "Knowledge is power." It is within your province to gain the necessary knowledge to put you at the head of a great institution.

THE POST-DISPATCH'S DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

BANK OF ENGLAND'S RESERVE OFF OVER $19,000,000

Week-End Statement of Foreign Institution Makes a Poor Showing.

By Leased Wire From The New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 4.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The pause in the definite movement of stock exchange recovery after the market's opening today seemed to indicate that Wall street and outside investors believed the recent favorable changes in the situation to have been reasonably discounted; in view, at least, of the numerous military or diplomatic uncertainties which still remain."

"Since the middle of last week, just before the turn of sentiment from apathy to active speculation, prices of active stocks have risen 2 to 4 points. They are still distant from the distance below the high level reached in January, but the prices of that month, it is better understood now than then, measured the peculiar force of accumulated January reinvestment, and it also failed to allow for the continuing sales from Europe, which were bound to come whenever the market reached really attractive figures."

"Needless to say, the inducement for such foreign realising, after prolonged advances on the Stock Exchange, is considerably greater now, with the foreign exchanges in their present condition, than it was when sterling and continental rates were so much nearer normal figures, five or six weeks ago. There is little doubt that our market must compose itself to taking back ultimately very large amounts of these European holdings of our stocks and bonds."

"The process will serve to strengthen in the country's economic position. But it does not encourage very bold experiments in the continuous bidding up of prices at New York. How far such a movement might be stimulated hereafter, by important developments in the European situation, together with the possibility of unfavorable as well as favorable news."

Market is irregular.

"So far as the movement of prices went today's stock market had a strength pretty well until the last hour, when there was a partial reaction. This did not go far enough, however, to reverse all the early advances so that prices, in many instances, showed modest gains for the day. But the trading was fairly broad, and the tone firm, and there was at times a rather spirited buying of the low-priced shares. The standard stocks were also in good demand, with interest much of the time to Reading, Union Pacific and United States Steel."

"There was a bid for the bond market, with some fair demand for the high-grade investment issues. Some of the demand came from the savings banks and the life insurance companies, which made discriminating purchases."

"News of another gold movement of $700,000 from Japan, which will start from Yokohama next Saturday, together with the further receipt of $500,000 gold from Canada, attracted attention."

"The foreign exchange market was rendered interesting by the sharp fluctuations in sterling and by the general firmness in exchange rates. Sterling, together with the further receipt of $500,000 gold from Canada, attracted attention."

"There was a strong tone to German exchange, with a bid at 48 cents yesterday, at 88. This was attributed to the purchases of the new German bonds by people here and at the West. There were large offerings of bills against purchases of war supplies by various governments, but the influence of these operations in the exchange market was not as pronounced as it was a few days ago. On the other hand, the decision bearing on this point was an increase in rates charged for war risk insurance, and the fluctuation of marine underwriters to take some risks except under conditions, which made it very difficult to arrange shipments."

"The advances in insurance rates were much discussed with reference to their bearing on the export trade. It was evident, however, that the underwriters were a good deal as usual, and that it would be several days yet before they are in position to readjust their business to conform with the new conditions encountered in the making of rates."

"Lending institutions made large offerings of money on call and on time. Brokers were particularly poised to take large loans on time, and the banks had difficulty in placing their money in high-grade securities or in collateral loans. Rates were for the most part unchanged, but the market indicated plainly that in case of excessive offerings there could be a break in call rates. Some of the banks had opportunities to make advances to syndicates and to individuals in the subscription for new municipal loans. The volume of these offerings, however, was not so large as it was a few days ago. The market was in a position to readjust their business to conform with the new conditions encountered in the making of rates."

"The Bank of England's weekly statement showed another large loss of gold reserve, as of Nov. 19, today's figure shows a decline of no less than $10,000,000. Loans increased this week by $10,000,000, which is accounted for by the shipment of gold to the reserve to New York City."

"As compared with its maximum gold reserve, as of Nov. 19, today's figure shows a decline of no less than $10,000,000. Loans increased this week by $10,000,000, which is accounted for by the shipment of gold to the reserve to New York City."

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By ROY L. McCARDELL

It looked as though it might rain, so Mrs. Jarr insisted Mr. Jarr must take an umbrella. But as he had his, and she wouldn't permit him to carry her best one, which had an eagle's claw of silver grasping an imitation turquoise silver and had a white silk stripe at the edge, Mr. Jarr was rather relieved. He would rather have been drowned in a torrential downpour than carry such a distinctively feminine article as Mrs. Jarr's best umbrella.

However, Mrs. Jarr suggested that Willie Jarr might run into the Rangle flat, some doors below, and borrow an umbrella from Mrs. Rangle. "Then it won't matter if it's lost," Mrs. Jarr had added.

So Willie called to borrow the Rangle family umbrella, and returned with a formidable affair with a steel handle. This instrument of torture was so constructed that it was supposed to raise if a certain spring was pressed. This was merely a supposition, however. It had to be raised and lowered by main force. And in pushing in the catch one always out the ball of one's thumb. A peroxide-and-cort-plaster kit should have gone with it.

Mr. Rangle being home when Willie Jarr came to borrow the umbrella, Mrs. Rangle had suggested that he go along with Mr. Jarr and his offspring, so as to keep an eye on the umbrella. "For," said Mrs. Rangle, "I'll wager anything, Mrs. Jarr has a whole covey full of umbrellas. I've bought our children two school umbrellas this winter, and where are they? The other night you went out and lost an umbrella. I wouldn't be surprised if you let it out of your hand and that man Jarr took it. You are a regular softy about umbrellas. Nobody is honest about umbrellas, and that's why I always take one whenever I find it. But wait."

She closed the door on little Willie Jarr and left him standing in the hall. Suppose this is an umbrella that belongs to the Jarrs? Then I never will get it back. So many people are so inconsiderate about those things. I'd scorn to keep anything belonging to anyone else, even if it was my own. No, I remember, now, this was one Mrs. Terwilliger lent me nearly a year ago. I put it in the closet when she called and forgot it afterward. I wonder if she'd recognize it?

"Better let Mr. Jarr carry it till you get past Mrs. Terwilliger's house. She's so inquisitive; always at the window. But I'll be looking out and wave to her as you pass, and that will distract her attention. For, of course, that would be just like Mrs. Terwilliger to create a scene about a cheap old umbrella that perhaps don't even belong to her. So be very careful with it, and if it should rain you can go back to the house with that man Jarr and say at the door, 'Oh, by the way, I'll need the umbrella.'"

So Mr. Rangle took out the umbrella and with Willie Jarr joined Mr. Jarr and little Emma upon the sidewalk. "Where's your children, Rangle?" asked Mr. Jarr. "They might have come along with us."

It was an unlikely moment he asked this question, for Mr. Rangle, without thinking, replied: "Oh, we let our kids go to the moving pictures."

At this Mr. Jarr and little Emma Jarr set up a howl in unison, as though they had been waiting for the Process of Elimination.

AFTER we take away those persons whom we do not consider worth while and those who do not consider us worth while, the remainder is so meager as to render the lives of most of us almost companionless.

cue, after being carefully rehearsed to howl in the same key. "We want to go to the movies! Blah! Blah! Yow! Yow!" howled the dear little Jarr children.

"If you'll only stop howling, I'll take you anywhere," cried Mr. Jarr, shaking the darlings. So the walk was headed in the direction of the nearest neighborhood picture house. But at a toy store that baited this trap there was a man in the window with a pressure gas tank inflating old-fashioned gas (or self-inflating) toy balloons of red and blue. The children stopped to cry for these.

Industrial Growth.

SAY, disgustingly remarked the traveler to the native he met on the road, "this town is the most gloomy, stagnant, and lonesome place I've struck; puts me in mind of Goldsmith's poem, 'The Deserted Village.' What's happened to it?"

"It's like this, mister; about two years ago this place and Live Oaks, four miles up the railroad, subscribed enough money to build a moving picture theater, and t'other towns got it. Since then folks don't spend so much of their time home. Like as not, if you ploed on towards Live Oaks, you'll find most of the neighbors around somewhere."

A Man's Way.

WOMEN may learn to smoke and drink. "Well?" "But they will never adopt the habit of getting behind a newspaper at breakfast and contributing only grunts to the conversation."

Wise Maid.

THERE'S a gentleman in the parlor, sir," said the maid. "Did he give you his name, Katie?" asked the man of the house. "Oh, no, sir; but I think it's the one who wants to give his name to your daughter, sir."

Not a Soft Answer.

WHAT kind of a letter did your husband write when he was away?" "He started, 'My Precious Treasures and ended sending 'love.'"

"How did you answer?" "I started with 'My Precious Treasures' and ended with 'Send me ten dollars.'"

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

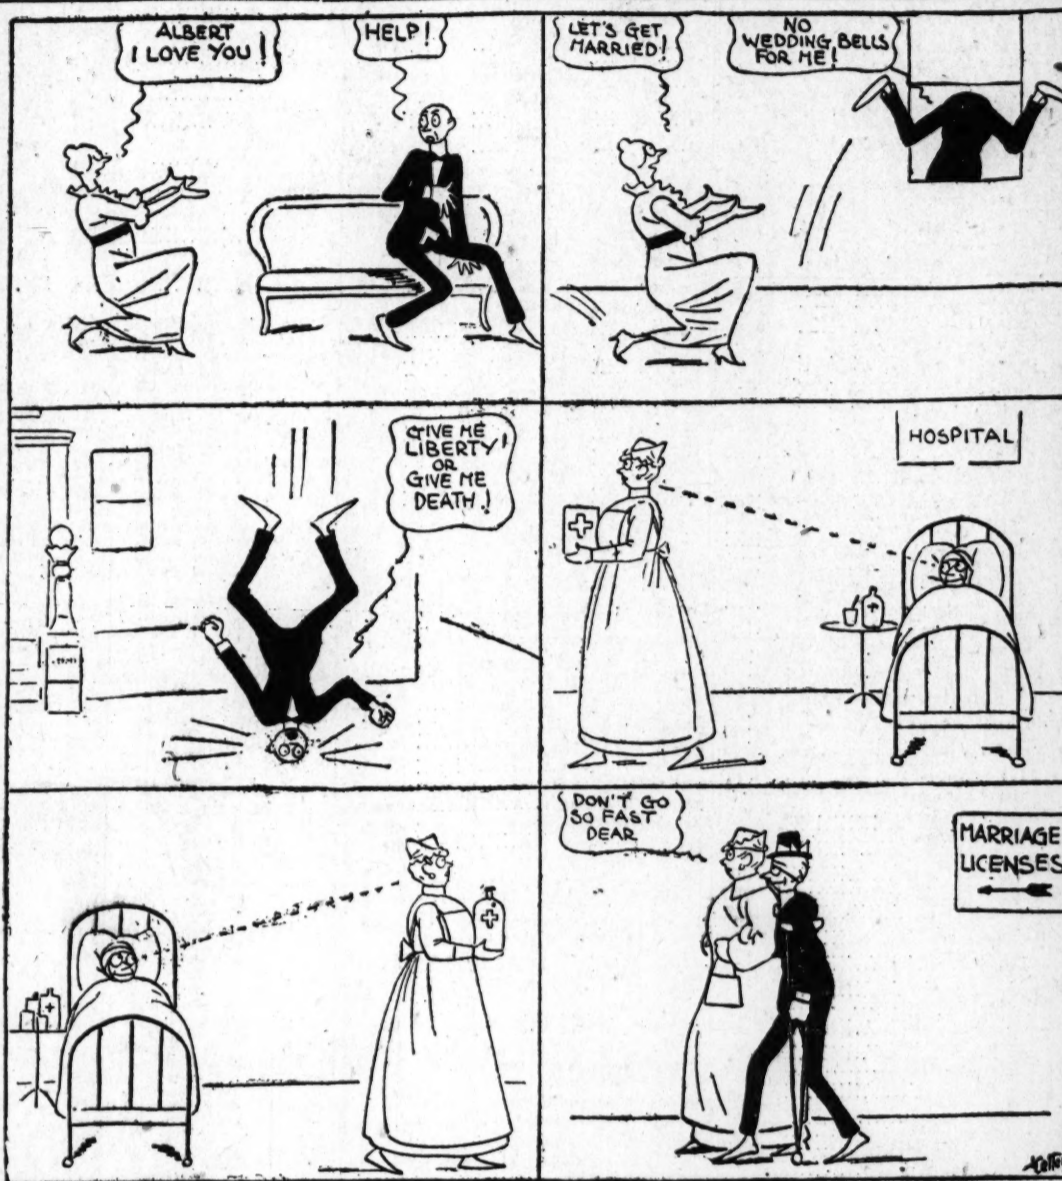

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain melted coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair. Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulified coconut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—ADV.

John Martin's Bill

SAY, Mister, do you recollect John Martin's youngster, Bill—the wild-est kid that ever dug a 'tater from a hill? You recollect he run away some 15 years ago? Well, last week Bill come back ag'in, a-clovin' with a show. The train got in at 10 o'clock; they 'raded right away. At 2 a lot of us dropped round to see the matinee. The clown looked mighty good to us; we laughed nigh fit to kill, but not a feller in the crowd knowed he was Martin's Bill.

At 5 we all was killin' time in Pickwick's grocery store when down the street there come the clown. He sauntered in the door. At sight of him the talkin' stopped an' ev'ryone was still. An' then he come right out an' says that he was Martin's Bill. 'Twas hard fer almost all of us to place him; as fer me, I reckoned his features did Uncle Chet McGee. We shook hands all around an' then he says to Uncle Chet, "Where are the old folks, Uncle? Are my parents livin' yet?"

"I hate to tell you, Bill," Chet says. "They're sleepin' side by side. But here's"—he stopped to clear his throat; all ears was open wide—but here's a message fer you, Bill. 'Twas wrote you by yer dad. He asked me if I'd do my best to hand it to you, lad."

At that Chet hemmed an' hawed a bit an', fumblin' in his coat, he handed to the circus man a time-worn little note. "I've had it 'leven years," he says, "a-hopin' ev'ry day to see you 'fore they boxed me up an' carried me away."

A hush fell on the crowd at once an', while nobody stirred, Bill tore the cover off the note an' read us ev'ry word. "Dear son," it says, "when this you get you'll know yer ma an' I forgive you, Bill, for everything; God bless you, son! Good-by!"

Bill's eyes growed just a little moist. We never moved until he slowly turned his steps a-towards the graveyard on the hill. Old Uncle Chet McGee an' me just sort o' loitered 'bout an' while the clown was there inside, we kept the people out.

That night Bill tried to tell his jokes, but fell down awful bad, an' those who didn't know the cause went homeward pretty mad. But to the rest of us who knowed the way he did his part was 'xactly right. It showed us all Bill Martin had a heart.

How They Looked to Her.
An old lady was gazing at illustrations on the fashion page. "Sug-gestions for the summer girl's wardrobe! Humph! They are all right for the wardrobe, but they ain't for the street."

Took His Medicine.
"I'm a pill," proclaimed the tough. "I'll take you," responded the policeman as he gathered him in.

Getting a Gem.

HOW did you happen to pick out that girl for a wife among all the dozens you knew?
Or notice she occasionally put on something heavier than a lace wrap when we have a blizzard. Also, she sometimes wears overshoes when it is raining hard. I thought those things displayed rare sense."

"Unbelievably rare for these days, young man. You have selected a gem."

Worst Kind of Fellow.

WHAT sort of fellow is he?
"A trouble maker."
"He seems peaceable enough."
"I know; but he's the sort of a blundering chap that denied all the lies you've told your wife."
